Denies Hoffa was in car on day of disappearance

DETROIT (AP) — Jimmy Hoffa's foster son, Charles "Chuckie" O'Brien, denied today that the missing ex-Teamsters union president was in a car O'Brien drove on the day Hoffa disappeared, according to a close associate.

O'Brien's comments followed a report that tests by experts using trained dogs have led federal officials to believe Hoffa recently had been in the back seat and trunk of a car owned by Joseph Giacalone, 22, son of reputed Mafia figure Anthony "Tony Jack" Giacalone.

"There's no way that Hoffa was in that car on that day," O'Brien told the associate here. The associate, who asked not to be identified, told The Associated Press that O'Brien called him from Florida, where O'Brien is moving his family.

Officials familiar with the investigation have confirmed a copyrighted story in today's editions of the Detroit Free Press that three dogs used by FBI agents detected traces of Hoffa's scent in the car.

The FBI confiscated the younger Giacalone's 1975 Mercury on Aug. 9 to test a stain on the front seat, a O'Brien had maintained.

O'Brien has said he borrowed the car on July 30, the day Hoffa dropped from sight.

O'Brien said he used the car to deliver a fish to a Teamsters vice president in Detroit. He said it was a coincidence that he was driving near where Hoffa disappeared at the time Hoffa vanished.

Hoffa was last seen standing outside a fashionable suburban restaurant, where he reportedly had arranged to meet that day with the elder Giacalone.

Joseph Giacalone could not be reached for comment.

O'Brien, 41, a Teamster organizer, has been subpoenaed to appear before a federal grand jury probing the disappearance of the former labor boss. The jury will hear from 70 witnesses beginning next week.

Officials said the dogs indicated in all the tests that Hoffa had been in both the back seat and in the trunk of the car.

The Free Press said investigators close to the case indicated the testimony about the dogs' reactions might be admissible in court.

However, authorities told The AP they had never heard of testimony of that kind being admitted in a court before.

O'Brien's attorney, James Burdick, said the scent picked up by the dogs "is not of any real significance."

Trulocks seeking injunction against absentee vote probbers

Charging harassment and threats, Marilyn Trulock, in behalf of her son, Ted Trulock Jr., today filed a petition for an injunction against Special Assistant Prosecutors Charles Levad and Brian David and Lee County State's Atty. Patrick E. Ward.

The younger Trulock, 16, has testified before the grand jury and has been granted immunity from prosecution in the investigation of alleged irregularities in absentee voting in the April 15 city election.

The petition, filed this morning in the office of Circuit Clerk Harold Huffman, asked the court to enjoin Levad, David and Ward from interfering with young Trulock's relationship with his attorneys. Trulock is being represented by the firm of Dixon, Devine, Ray, and Morin.

The petition alleges that at first contact by Levad and David, young Trulock informed them he had engaged the law firm to represent him. The petition goes on to state that Trulock had a legal right to refuse to discuss or disclose confidential and privileged information exchanged with his attorneys.

The allegation continues that Levad and David "have further harassed, annoyed, bothered and threatened" young Trulock with criminal prosecution "if he further refuses to disclose or testify" as to the substance of privileged and confidential communications between him and his attorneys.

The petition complains that because of the conduct of Levad and David, young Trulock has become "nervous, upset and distressed" and will suffer "irreparable harm" unless the injunction is issued. The petition states further that young Trulock's good reputation in the community will be "irreparably injured" if Levad and David are not enjoined and restrained from "threatening and demanding" him to disclose communications with his attorneys.

The petition asks a temporary injunction against Levad, David and Ward and their officer agents and employees from "harassing and threatening" Trulock to disclose information he has given his attorneys, pending final determination of the petition and that after a final hearing on the injunction, that it be made permanent.

Harassment, threats alleged in petition mation exchanged with his attorneys. "On a multitude of occasions," the Trulock petition alleges, Levad and David have attempted to compel young Trulock to terminate representation by his attorneys and to

Natural gas shortage 30% greater this year

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford today told governors of states facing a natural gas shortage this winter that shortages could be 30 per cent greater than last winter.

The President and his energy administrator, Frank Zarb, said the figure is based on a preliminary government report issued today.

Ford and Zarb met with governors or representatives of 14 states which are expected to experience shortages. Also attending were governors of the chief natural gas-producing states, Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma.

The bill to extend price controls reached the White House today. Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said he knew of no compromise that was in the mill.

A White House spokesman said Ford called the meeting to discuss with the governors how severely their states might be affected as well as possible options for alleviating the shortage.

One of the participants, Democrat Milton J. Shapp of Pennsylvania, issued a statement before the meeting, attacking Ford administration energy policies.

"The natural gas situation is the latest example of federal inaction in the energy area," Shapp said. "The Nixon-Ford administration had at least six years warning of the gas crisis we face this winter."

"Yet, to date the Ford administration's only response has been to advocate massive price rises for natural gas and other fuels on the false notion that such a policy will eliminate the shortage."

The President is expected to call for voluntary conservation policies by the states and to consider various legislative moves the government and the states might make. The spokesman said, "There is not a great deal the President can do administratively."

Ford also may urge support for legislation to end federal regulation of wellhead prices of new natural gas supplies. Under the plan, gas now flowing into interstate commerce would be deregulated as existing contracts expire.

Under the administrationportedly may recommend that the President seek standby authority for the Federal Power Commission to divert intrastate gas to interstate markets in any national emergency.

Gas-short states whose governors are attending are New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Missouri, North Carolina, South Carolina, Maryland, Virginia, Iowa, Kentucky and Delaware. The governors of Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana were invited because their states are major natural gas producers.

The governors of New York and West Virginia declined invitations because of prior commitments. Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of California did not respond to his invitation.

Gov. Thomas P. Salmon of Vermont and Gov. Philip Noel of Rhode Island are attending in their respective roles as chairman of the National Governors Conference energy committee and chairman of the Democratic Governors Conference.

In another energy development, Senate sources said Wednesday that Ford and Congress are trying to reach a last-minute compromise on the impending decontrol of oil prices.

The President has said he will veto a bill passed by Congress that would extend price controls for six months beyond Aug. 31, but the bill has not been sent to him yet.

One Senate source said, "Discussions are still going on... They are still hopeful of working out a compromise." It was unclear what kind of compromise might be involved.

If price controls end at midnight Sunday, the current $5.25-a-barrel ceiling on about 60 per cent of U.S.-produced oil would be lifted and the price of that oil is expected to rise to the unregulated world level of around $12 a barrel.

Natural gas sold interstate is regulated at 52 cents per 1,000 cubic feet. Intrastate sales go as high as $1.50.

The President and his advisers contend that deregulation is the best way to shift more gas to industry and homes in the upper Midwest, Northeast and Southeast where shortages are expected.

Federal Energy Administrator Frank G. Zarb also re-sponsored legislation, interstate pipeline operators would be free to pay much more to producers to bid new gas away from unregulated intrastate consumers, chiefly in Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and New Mexico.

Commonwealth Edison granted rate increase

CHICAGO (AP) — The Illinois Commerce Commission granted Commonwealth Edison Co. today a 6.87 per cent rate increase.

The increase, combined with an earlier interim increase the ICC allowed Edison, totals about $200 million in additional annual revenues, about $40 million less than the company requested.

Nevertheless, it still means residential customers, who saw their monthly electric bills go up about 2 per cent with the February interim increase, now will be paying from 75 cents to $1.15 more per month on the average, said Marvin S. Lieberman, ICC chairman.

Commonwealth Edison has about 2.7 million customers in a 25-county area of northern Illinois.

The company filed proposed rate increase with the commission last October asking for an immediate emergency increase of 7.3 per cent and a another increase of 8.3 per cent.

In February, the commission allowed an emergency rate increase of 5.8 per cent and its ruling today was also lower.

Edison officials were not available immediately for comment.

The new increase can take effect as early as Friday, said Lieberman, depending on how fast Edison officials file the proper tariffs with the commission.

He said the new increase will be applied uniformly to all classes of customers with the exception of certain municipal street lighting contracts.

The average rate increase estimates on the consumer's monthly bill were based on 300 kilowatt hours usage in the Chicago area and 500 kilowatt hours usage in the suburban and Rockford areas.

An ICC official said that generally the new increase will mean a 6.3 per cent increase in the monthly bill for 100 kilowatt hours usage ranging to a 7 per cent increase for usage over 1,000 kilowatt hours.

Sterling teachers okay pact

The Sterling Education Association teachers accepted an offer from the Sterling School Board Wednesday night. The offer increases the teachers' base salary to $9,325 from last year's $8,900.

Also included in the new contract is a provision for a 4.25 seniority index and a 4.5 index for "professional improvement." Under terms of the contract, tenured teachers can not be released as part of a staff reduction that might occur during the contract period.

The teacher group had been involved in "informational picketing" before and after school as means of supporting their position.

South Central changes will be discussed

A special meeting of the Dixon School Board of Education has been scheduled for Friday afternoon at 4 p.m.

According to Superintendent Stanley Weber, the increased use of South Central facilities are to be discussed. Specifically, changing the kindergarten class to a full-time basis and re-establishing first grade at South Central will be considered.

Weber said the reason for these considerations is a larger-than-expected enrollment for the lower grades in Dixon.

Israeli planes stage attack

TEL AVIV (AP) — Israeli warplanes attacked suspected Arab guerrilla targets in Lebanon today, and witnesses in the area said 3 women and a 3-year-old girl were seriously wounded.

Unconfirmed reports from Palestinian sources in Lebanon said three persons were killed at a nearby Mediterranean pier during the raid, which they said was flown by four jets and lasted 12 minutes.

Kissinger spends 6 hours with Israelis

JERUSALEM (AP) — Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger met with Israeli leaders for nearly six hours today, sharpening the dozens of clauses that make up the new Sinai pact.

He indicated the details would keep him shuttling between Jerusalem and Alexandria at least through Saturday. A senior American official said earlier the pact may be initiated Sunday or Monday.

Kissinger later flew to Egypt, saying he hoped to return to Jerusalem tonight. He said he wanted to accomplish as much as possible before the Jewish Sabbath at sundown Friday closes government offices.

On Wednesday a senior American official said a few clauses "of at least symbolic significance" remained to be ironed out in the Sinai pact.

Kissinger returned to Jerusalem from Alexandria, Egypt, Wednesday night for more talks with Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and the rest of the Israeli negotiating team.

"We are continuing to move forward," Kissinger told reporters after a two-hour meeting with the Israelis Wednesday night. "The number of issues that remain are relatively small... There are problems of details of some significance."

U.S. sources said one point still to be settled is the precise number of American-managed electronic surveillance posts to be stationed around the Gidi and Mitla mountain passes to give warning of military operations once Israel has pulled back to a new defense line.

Israel originally sought about six posts, but has now limited its demand to two or three. In addition, the Israelis and Americans would operate a post on the Egyptian side of the Gidi pass while the Egyptians and Americans would man one on the Israeli side.

Israel is insisting on the presence of the Americans to avert a recurrence of Egypt's expulsion of the United Nations buffer force in the Sinai Desert just before the 1967 Arab-Israeli war. Under the new agreement, the U.S. staff would be removed only if both Israel and Egypt approved.

Subject to congressional approval, the posts would be manned by a total of about 100 American technicians armed with sidearms, U.S. sources said. They would be recruited from private industry and from former employees of the Central Intelligence Agency and the National Security Agency, the sources said.

Israeli Defense Minister Shimon Peres told a meeting of the ruling Labor party "almost American involvement" would result from the new agreement.

Both governments will renounce the use or threat of force for more than three years. Egypt will allow Israeli cargo through the Suez Canal, and the United States will pledge economic aid.

Complaints may be right

DES MOINES, Iowa (AP) — Both consumers and cattle farmers are complaining about the price and quality of beef these days. And both may be right, says Iowa Agriculture Secretary Robert Lounsberry.

"Consumers are paying the price of choice beef, but producers are being paid for good beef," Lounsberry said. "It's happening all over the country."

Lounsberry, a former cattle producer, said Wednesday he has received numerous complaints that farmers are sending cattle they believe to be all choice grade to market, only to be told the majority of the beef "grades out" at good, the grade below choice.

"That costs them $85 to $120 a head on a 1,000 pound steer," he said.

And he adds that when the consumer goes to the meat market, he finds most beef graded neither prime nor good, but select.

Encephalitis suspected in 2 cases

The outbreak of encephalitis which was brought to public notice in Southern Illinois earlier this week, is believed to have spread to the Northern Illinois area.

Two unconfirmed cases are reported at Sterling's Community General Hospital. According to officials there, two patients from the Sterling area were brought to the hospital Tuesday evening. They are suspected to have encephalitis.

Laboratory tests taken from the victims have been sent to the Public Health Service for analysis. The results from these tests are expected to give official confirmation of the disease.

Because encephalitis is a viral infection, a number of days is required to separate and analyze the infirmity.

KSB Hospital officials report that no encephalitis cases have been brought to their attention in the immediate area of Dixon.

No garbage pickup Monday
Commissioner Thomas Densmore announced today regular garbage pickup on Monday will be postponed until Tuesday because of Labor Day.

The Lion of Judah

One of the longest-ruling monarchs in modern history, Haile Selassie was crowned emperor of Ethiopia in 1930.

Born Ras Tafari, to an Ethiopian noble family in 1892, Selassie began a full-scale modernization of his country soon after his coronation.

In 1931, he gave the country a modern constitution and sanctioned the opening of a national parliament. Over the next five years, his country, which had practiced Christianity for centuries, developed by leaps and bounds.

However, in 1935, Benito Mussolini's expansionist ambitions found an appealing target in Ethiopia. In the midst of a bitter clash over the frontier line between Ethiopia and Somalia, it came to light that both countries had lost the treaty that officially defined the border.

Italy massed its troops on the Ethiopian borders and, in October, 1935, invaded Ethiopia from neighboring Somalia and Eritrea. Ethiopia resisted for seven months, but its capital, Addis Ababa, finally fell on May 5, 1936.

On June 30, Selassie defended his nation's integrity in an impassioned speech before the League of Nations. But Rome had already proclaimed Ethiopia's absorption into its empire, and the League excluded Ethiopia from its deliberations—a move that led to its subsequent disintegration.

Following World War II, Selassie lobbied world leaders in order to regain Ethiopia's national sovereignty.

Building his development efforts around the new Ethiopian Airlines, Selassie finally secured the independence of his nation again, resurrecting its original constitution in November, 1955.

He ruled virtually unopposed, except for an attempted coup in 1960, during which time he developed Ethiopia's educational institutions, its navy, roads, communications and hydroelectric facilities.

In March, 1974, under the pressure of mutinous army troops and a threatened general strike, Selassie agreed to a constitutional convention to create a new system of elected democratic government.

On June 28, 1974, the army's 4th division took virtual control of Addis Ababa. It issued a series of guidelines for future government, calling for a figurehead emperor and a cabinet in which the military would have major power.

Late that year, the army finally deposed Selassie, ending his 44-year reign. He was held under guard in Addis Ababa, amid rumors that the army was planning his execution.

But the army's official response was that Selassie was being held under guard for "his own safety and protection."

Selassie died Tuesday of natural causes at the age of 83.

Take it from Here

REFLECTIONS—Stock market analysts argue whether the small investor is back and economists wonder where the consumer is after taking cover from double-digit inflation, the worst business slump since World War II and buffeted by shortages and soaring prices for beef, sugar and gasoline.

This column is not about investors and if consumers are not as much in evidence to economists it is because in 1974 while there was an increase in family income this was offset by inflation and the net result was a decline of 4 per cent in purchasing power.

Another factor about consumers, according to some recent studies, is they are back but not where they used to be.

There have been some shifts in buying habits partly as consumers cope with prices rising faster than their incomes and partly because of permanent adjustments caused by an apparent end to cheap energy, concern over environment and a worldwide limitation of raw material.

Personal consumption expenditures are close to a trillion dollars each year but how this is distributed between durable, nondurable goods and services in the future is predicted to change.

For instance, the National Planning Association estimates, spending for durable items, which reached a high of 16.2 per cent of personal expenditures in 1973, will drop to 14 per cent by 1979 and further to 13.6 per cent by 1984.

It is also predicted purchases of nondurable products will continue to drop. This category of expenditures hit 46.5 per cent of personal spending in 1960 and has declined ever since, being 42 per cent in 1973 and is predicted to decline to 39.9 per cent by 1984.

Conversely, the other category, service, has risen gradually and is predicted to continue to take an increasing portion of consumer expenditures. Services expenditures totaled 39.6 per cent of personal spending in 1960 and increased to 42.5 per cent by 1970, dropped back a bit by 1973 to 41.8 per cent and is predicted to account for 46.5 per cent of expenditures by 1984.

A more detailed survey of the trend of changing expenditures by consumers will better reveal where the shopper is.

Food and tobacco, which accounted for 26.9 per cent of personal spending in 1960, by 1973 was down to 22.2 per cent and is expected to decline to 20.6 per cent by 1984.

This category of spending has, and will continue to be the largest single item in the consumer's spending budget.

Up to 1973, housing had been second and transportation third, but these are predicted to switch by 1979 and five years after that, transportation is seen to take 14.6 per cent of personal expenditures while housing costs will account for 13.9 per cent.

Housing operation, one of the top four expenditures of families, hit a high in 1973 of 14.6 per cent of all spending and is seen to decline to 13.8 per cent by 1984.

As inflation eases, some of these changes in buying habits may revert back to the pre-gasoline and beef shortage times, but the general shift to consumer spending reflected in the National Planning Association's survey probably will be the way of the future.

A study, "Change in the Market Place" by Joel Baumwoll, compared 1974 spending plans over those held by the persons interviewed in 1973.

This revealed 34 per cent put off buying a new car; that 35 per cent were planning more modest vacations, and 71 per cent were eating in more casual family-type eating places.

The situation with automobiles likely will change but the consumer may go after a different type of vehicle.

The cutting back on vacations will no doubt change when the consumer's spending power catches up.

Patronizing casual family-type eating places is probably a trend, witness the tremendous growth in the number of such establishments.

People are staying home more, as evidenced by rapidly increased sales of popcorn and salted peanuts and this well may be a situation which will continue. For a long time the relatively high cost of alcoholic beverages over the bar has spurred sales by package stores. Buy the drink, take it home, and watch TV.

The dollars of the new consumer may have to be found by some entrepreneurs but there is a trillion dollars out there.

Jawboning will not hold off inflation

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—What President Ford does not understand is the serious effect economic bumbling, economic manipulations and economic disaster in foreign lands can have on all of us in the United States.

Mr. Ford and his men are not alone. The same ignorance saturates Congress and has pervaded the past three Administrations. Presidents and their Secretaries of State have thought in terms of foreign aid and disaster relief. They've considered the effects of U.S. actions on foreign countries. But they've given little thought to the ways in which foreign economic decisions affect the U.S.—except in some trade and currency manipulation matters.

Now this is strange. The current inflation-recession-depression was intensified in the U.S. because of the concurrent worldwide inflation-depression virulent on every continent.

The inflation here was magnified, and the depression deepened, as everyone knows by now, by the world oil cartel's radical price increases.

Americans lose jobs, and we all have less money to spend, when foreign recession or politico-economic decisions hurt U.S. exports and lessen income from U.S. foreign investments—primarily in the form of American companies operating abroad.

One would think the sharp oil crisis alone would have taught Mr. Ford, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger and the leaders of Congress something about foreign economics. Not so. When foreign nations take economic action, we react—nothing more. Or we may talk, hope for the best, have conferences—and do nothing.

In the Truman-Eisenhower years, the Treasury Department was staffed with teams of top-flight international specialists. From 1960 to 1965, the Secretary of the Treasury was Douglas Dillon, a man with considerable experience in foreign affairs and in finance. He had long years of international business experience, had been ambassador to France. For a period he had been the No. 2 man in the Department of State, bringing his economic know-how to that critical post in foreign affairs.

Unfortunately our foreign diplomacy today is dominated by men who too frequently think in narrow political terms.

Kissinger, for example, knows nothing of international economics. During his years in the White House he made it clear he personally could care less. His entry in the field following the oil boycott was made with some distaste. I have been told by men who should know.

Friends with long experience at the State Department have long recommended the No. 2 man in that agency be an outstanding diplomat-economic specialist of the caliber of Douglas Dillon.

Today and the years just ahead is the time when we must replace lip service and jawboning with action. The oil cartel threatens another price raise—and then another. Real growth in Western Europe is expected to decline this year—down 2 per cent in West Germany, and down 1.5 per cent for West Europe as a whole.

The situation is equally tight in Japan, though the Japanese, like the West Germans, are making herculean efforts to achieve recovery. The situation in Italy remains serious. Great Britain is an economic disaster, with few signs of improvement visible on the horizon.

The economic outlook is gloomy on wide sections of South and Southeast Asia, Africa and in a fistful of countries in Latin America. As noted above, this is more than a social problem. It hampers our buying of critical materials, our exports and the financial stability on which our country depends. That is, for one, the worldwide economic outlook for the next few years threatens to bring pressures which will keep unemployment high.

Voice of the people

With the termination of the Revolutionary War, the Declaration of Independence was written and signed. The Constitution, including the Bill of Rights, was written and ratified, becoming a part of America, the written law of the land and of our country to be observed by every citizen in America. Our personal rights have never been infringed upon. It has been tried time after time, but those principles have never been destroyed.

The united 50 states of America consists of two principal parties, with the exception of Independent.

When our new government started to function, we, the United States, consisted of a two-party system—the first called the "Federalists" under George Washington; the other under Tom Jefferson called the "Anti-Federalists." The Federalists consisted of the financiers of our new and young country, owning real estate or its equivalent. They were the ones who took care of and held the finances of our new country. When the American people started moving and migrating and exploring to all parts of the country, strange, wild and new, beyond the sunset, America started to progress and to move ahead. With time and tide and with progress keeping pace of time and tide, people became cultured and educated by someone's ideas and ideals not like their own. America continued to progress, to expand, and again with someone else's bright idea of their inventive genius, became the world's greatest nation. Now isn't that just like America!

The American government is governed by two ruling bodies—the Federalists (the Republicans) and the Anti-Federalists (the Democrats). I do believe, taking all in all, this is quite simple and understandable. Our two parties do have differences of opinion, which is as it should be else America would not have gained its high place in the eyes of the world.

We, the American people, have in our government three ruling bodies of executives. Those three bodies are known as legislative, executive, and judicial. They do work as a ruling body or independently which they do at different times.

We, the American people, our government also consists of the House and the Senate (Congress). Those two bodies of men are composed predominately of the male sex, with only about five per cent being of the female sex. Now, as I have observed and remembered, where there is around 90 per cent of one sex, where they are in close proximity with one another, they become senile, narrow-minded, self-centered, egotistical, and later our government would fall into decadence, and naturally fall into nothingness. Now, my idea would be to have an act passed through the United States Supreme Court that Congress be composed of 55 per cent males and 45 per cent females, and through that medium have a closer-knit governing ruling body. Also, then Democrats and Republicans alike serve as congressmen and senators for two terms only, the same as our President. The female species have done wonders as helpmates and mothers of the advancement of civilization. Having our women be more a part of our government, the running, the operation, and just being a greater part of this great commonwealth civi-zation, the population has advanced so rapidly and so fast with advancement of time, and our laws that tend to bind and to keep our government solvent and aboveboard that again our women, God bless them all, are to be more a part of America. I do believe if both women and men serve in the Senate, it will be smooth-operating and become a principal part of our government. It's worth a try, isn't it?

In conclusion, if the American people can prove to the rest of the world that the American people say what they mean and mean exactly what they say (we are a government by all the people, of all the people, and for all the people) then, oh then, Almighty God will see to it that our government will never fail and the Statue of Liberty will stay in New York harbor and be a shining beacon for the whole world to honor and respect forever.

American has had a hard time, and the U.S.A. has fought several wars so to prove to the world that our democracy is the most stable form of any government known to anyone. I have always thought the rest of the world was jealous of America because of the principles we stand for—Freedom, Liberty, and the Pursuit of Individual Happiness. Nowhere is this practiced more than in America. I am wondering if somewhere along the line the people will forget our principles and go into decadence and deteriorate into nothingness and chaos. I do believe and hope there will be enough people believing in freedom, liberty, and the pursuit of individual happiness. If we do, Almighty God will see to it we won't perish from this earth.

The Indian Embassy in Washington has released the text of a reply by Prime Minister Indira Gandhi to Dr. Benjamin Spock, who sent her a cable urging her to "free Mr. J. P. Narayan and restore democratic liberty that the whole world has previously admired."

"I know that you are deeply committed to pacifist causes," said Mrs. Gandhi. "But I am not sure that you have been properly informed of what has been happening here."

"Mr. Jayaprakash Narayan has, for a long time, carried on a campaign against the government and against me personally but we did not do anything to curb his movements or his free speech. More recently he aligned himself with RSS (Rashtriya Swayamsevak Sangh), the organization which instituted Mahatma Gandhi's murder and which is fanatically Hindu, preaching discrimination against Muslim and Christian minorities. At the same time he encouraged the extreme left. Neither of these groups has ever claimed a belief in democracy. In his extreme anger and frustration at lack of popular support he called upon the army and the police to disobey orders.

"This is what compelled me to take the unpleasant decision. Democratic liberty in India is not jeopardized by the action that has been taken, but it would have been if we had permitted the country to drift."

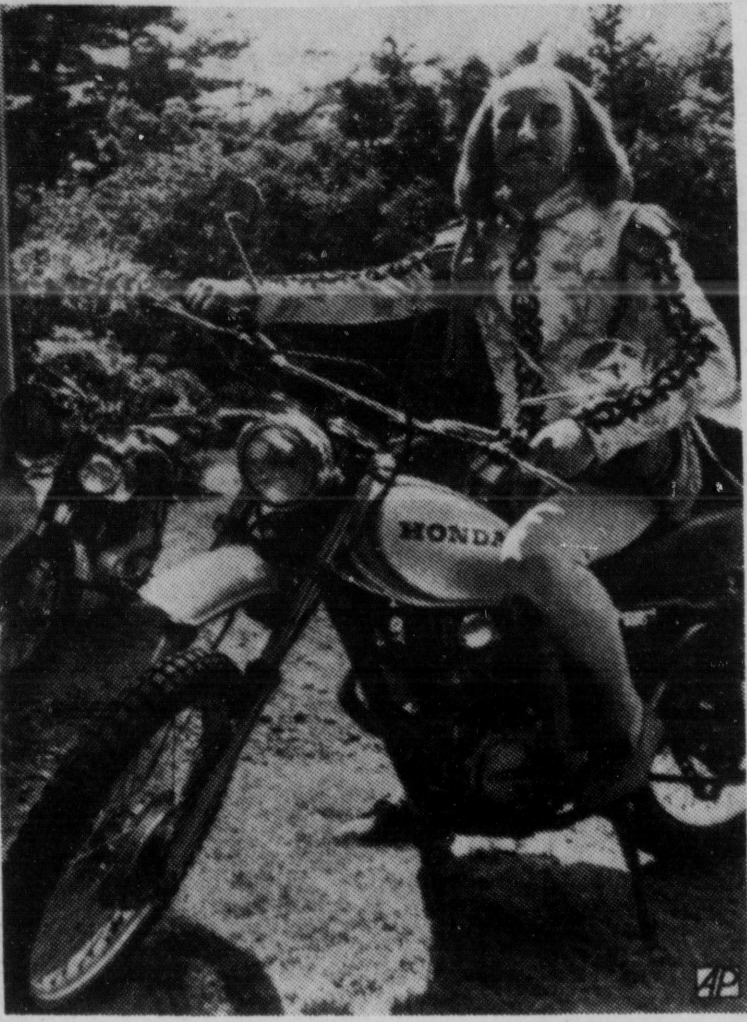

Even in a democracy, of course, there have to be limits on dissent and civil disobedience. But there is also supposed to be something called due process, a subject about which Dr. Spock, who has had his own run-ins with government authority, could instruct Mrs. Gandhi.

This is precisely what is so disturbing about what has been happening in India. Mrs. Gandhi has not only stifled the press and jailed many hundreds of alleged radicals and menaces to public order, she has done so without going through the bother of bringing formal charges against them and according them the right to defend themselves in a court of law. She has, in effect, set herself up as judge, jury and executioner of indeterminate sentences meted out to their political opponents.

A notorious phrase from the Vietnam war which Dr. Spock so ardently opposed is an apt epitaph for democratic liberty in India: "We had to destroy the village in order to save it."

Consumers not surprised by inflation hike

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — The doubling of the consumer inflation rate to 9.6 per cent in June reportedly surprised the administration. It didn't surprise food shoppers. They've been reading prices, not forecasts.

Consumers remain steadfast in their belief that you can't talk your economic troubles away. The recession has been declared over by the statistics readers in Washington. Consumers doubt that it is.

Reality exists on the consumer firing line. Faced with rising prices, consumers discard their dreams and become believers in sensible household fiscal policies. They cut where they can.

The extraordinarily high savings rate of 10.6 per cent of take-home pay suggests the insecure mood of consumers. Consumer polls, though they vary in specifics, show clearly that ordinary Americans aren't convinced.

They aren't convinced that the recession is over — not with close to 9 per cent of the job force unemployed, with probably another 1 per cent that might be classified as having given up.

A first National City Bank poll, conducted nationwide, showed consumers "are growing increasingly skeptical over the so-called economic recovery process," despite forecasts.

A sizable majority, the report found, "feel it will take anywhere from one to more than three years for the economy to start improving," a feeling that "runs counter to numerous reports from private economists and government estimates."

The Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development, a Paris-based association of the leading trading nations, doesn't see much cooling of inflation for the Western world during the next year.

More ominous, it fears that unemployment in the major industrial nations could be worse by then. For the United States it forecasts: "Unemployment is likely to remain high, perhaps around 9 per cent in the middle of 1976."

The OECD does foresee the United States coming out of the economic slump. "A relatively sharp rise in real GNP is forecast in the third and fourth quarters," it says. Then it gives some reasons why.

Cocktail hour returns to scene in Paris

PARIS — (NEA) — There have been many changes in Frenchmen's customs in the last 40 years. One of these is the cocktail bar habit. Never merely a cafe histro, beerhall or hole-in-the-wall right up until World War II, a bar was a meeting place for the higher-income group, a refuge where the presiding benie, the barman, was a friend, as well as sometimes the confidante of his clients. He was sort of "nanny" for grownup children.

The heroic era of the Parisian cocktail bars started in the '20s and '30s, in the days of Scott Fitzgerald, Hemingway, Sinclair Lewis and hundreds of lesser-known Americans. Then it was "in" to drink dry martinis, white ladies, manhattans and cherry cobbles, although whiskey and absinthe were also available. Men had their favorite haunts where often, when funds were low, their credit was good until the next check came along.

After Paris was liberated, cocktails were ousted by whiskey and vodka. Soon the bottle of Scotch migrated to the humblest bistro in the suburbs, usually represented by a single bottle side by side with Pernod.

Talk to any of the barmen in the leading luxury hotels and they will say there seems to be a renaissance of the evening cocktail hour. Once the bar, more or less luxurious, was essentially a masculine domain. It was a haven where a man could forget business or family troubles. It was also a refuge for the lonely and bachelors.

And long before women's lib, there were actually bars where women were definitely persona non grata and others where they had to be accompanied by a man. The leading "women not allowed" bar was at the Hotel Chatham, a rendezvous for racing people and a block from the Paris opera.

Bars are still on the map but somehow the clientele has changed and women think nothing of crossing the sacred threshold alone or with a friend. The old type of barman, ready to lend a sympathetic ear to a habitue's problems or join in a game of poker, and more important still, remember everybody's name, is one the way out.

But there is always Harry's Bar ("sank roo donoo") where way back in 1919 Harry McElhone, the owner, was on the friendliest terms with the American intelligentsia living in, or visiting Paris. It still is the place where American students eventually turn up (they drink beer or a soft drink because the price of alcohol is prohibitive). It was also the rendezvous of every American journalist in or out of the city. But Scottish-born McElhone (and now his son) also welcomed French amateur and professional footballers and boxers. In the cellar a jazz pianist played tirelessly until the small hours of election night in the United States, and on New Year's Eve, Harry's Bar never closed. Women were welcome.

Up on the Champs Elysees is Fourquet's bar and that famous restaurant was once known as the rendezvous of the movie world. Few, if any are to be seen there today, unless an old-timer visiting Paris pops in for a drink for old times' sake.

Just off the Champs Elysees is the Scot, a "real" bar in the old sense of the word — nothing in common with the noisy places that cater to girls and boys and often are short-lived. The Scot is open to 4 a.m. with a pianist dispensing soft music in a cozy "decor" including deep club chairs and Victorian wood panelling.

Essentially "ritzy" are the two bars of the grandfather of luxury hotels, the Ritz, "liberated" by Ernest Hemingway in 1944 who established his headquarters there. They are not only a smart meeting place but provide a chance to catch a glimpse of some of the international VIPs who are guests there.

The bar at the Hotel George V proves true an observation by barman Nino Dallanegro that the cocktail hour, like the tango and jazz, is again fashionable if only because the crowd now spills into the great hall. At the Bristol, within a block of the presidential Palais de l'Elysee and one of the last of the few super luxury hotels in Paris, the head barman claims that he invents a new cocktail every week. It is here that many of the important international statesmen reside when here for a summit meeting or conferences.

The first skyscraper hotel in Paris, the Concorde-Lafayette, boasting 34 stories and situated south of the Arc de Triomphe, has a panoramic bar frequented by visitors which include hundreds of Japanese who have made this hotel their favored headquarters — even to the extent that all signs are written in Japanese.

There are, of course, a score of lesser-known but also attractive bars dotting Patis which cater not only to the lonely hearts but also offer discreet meeting places far from the madding crowd. They have their devotees just as over on the Left Bank the better known are the Montana and the Closerie des Lilacs, once patronized by Oscar Wilde, Lenin, Modigliani and Hemingway, who have their "plaques" above the tables which they once occupied.

The first signature on the Declaration of Independence is that of a man from Massachusetts, John Hancock, who escaped capture by the British in the first battle of the war, at Lexington. He wrote his signature in such a way, he said, that "the King of England can read it without his glasses." This whimsical act alone made him immortal. An American handing out a contract for signature is apt to ask for "your John Hancock." The World Almanac notes.

Sharks are least of swimmers' worries

By ELLIE GROSSMAN
NEW YORK (NEA) — So, you've spent the better part of the summer on edge. Scanning the water for that swift, sharp fin. Dozing fitfully on the beach while the screams of children playing in the surf startle and unnerve you.

Actually, you don't have to worry about that great white shark. He's not the real menace, anyway, some experts say. There are others to be concerned about.

Oceanographer-photographer Andy Pruna, who's been diving for 25 of his 34 years, says, "Eighty per cent of shark attacks have been proved to be provoked. I've encountered many sharks in two or three feet of water, and nothing's happened. Last year, for example, off Miami, I was wading in a sand bank 100 yards offshore and suddenly I saw five or six fins. I immediately recognized them as lemon sharks. There were people swimming everywhere. I crossed the bank and told the lifeguard to get the people out. Later, he told me these sharks, which were six or seven feet long, had been appearing there for days. But they'd never attacked. Still, warns Pruna who's about to film feeding piranha in South America for the movie, Killers of the Wild, "you just never know."

"In the period 1865-1962, from North Carolina to Boston," says Dr. James A. Oliver, director of the New York Aquarium, "there were (only) 22 authenticated shark bites on human beings, nine of which resulted in death."

In other words, you're more likely to find trouble elsewhere. With sting rays, for instance.

A peaceful relative of the shark, the sting ray not only isn't looking for trouble, he's barely looking at all. He's a flat fish with a long tail, that likes to burrow around in the sand underwater. That, however, is where he poses a threat.

"The sting ray has a poisonous barbed spine in the base of his tail," explains John Prescott, director of the New England Aquarium in Boston. "He's a bottom-living fish that loves quiet bays and shallow waters when the water is warm. Of course, that's when people like to swim and that's when the accidents occur."

Step on a sting ray and he'll react naturally, defensively, throwing up his spine and inflicting a puncture wound that can be serious and may require medical attention.

"I know of two cases," Prescott says, "where children swimming in shallow water scraped the bottom and got a sting ray spine in the abdomen. A massive dose of the poison will cause shock and heart failure."

"They're found in all waters," reports Robert F. Staples, a biological oceanographer for the Naval Oceanographic Office in Suitland, Maryland, "particularly off Southern California where the highest rate of sting ray incidence occurs."

Jelly fish, also common, are a bit easier to detect since they're often swept up on shore. But not that much easier because they're also often transparent. "The tentacles which contain the stinging mechanisms are often so long and thin you never see them," says Arthur Ullrich, director of special projects for the National Association of Underwater Instructors. "And a jelly-fish sting can cause welts and be quite painful."

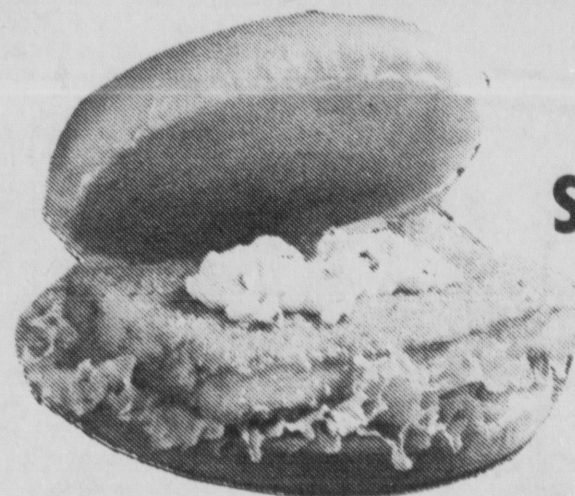

Especially if it's from that particularly nasty genre, the Portuguese man-of-war. Dr. Oliver says, "The Portuguese man-of-war is one of the most common dangers in the ocean. It has a number of poisonous stingers which can cause severe skin irritation, or, if a person is hypersensitive, may even result in death, although this is rare."

If you're stung by one offshore, adds John Prescott, "the pain can be so bad and the resulting shock so severe, you can drown."

The greatest threat of all for the beachgoer — notwithstanding severe sunburn or cuts from broken beer bottles — is the water itself.

"That was fun at Vail, but now I'm ready to get back to Washington and a little golf, tennis and swimming!"

Vail takes on image as Western White House

VAIL, Colo. (AP) — Vail is becoming firmly entrenched as the Western White House, with President Ford already making plans for a skiing vacation here at Christmas.

"I'll be back," Ford told a crowd of 300 persons as he ended his two-week working vacation.

"Are you ready to come back at Christmas?" Ford asked reporters a few days before while posing for photos with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. "I think it will work out, we're planning on it."

Ford has owned a condominium in this mountain resort since he was a congressman. He skis and plays golf and tennis — all sports that are part of the Vail atmosphere.

Ford skied here as vice president and then returned last Christmas for a skiing vacation. This summer, Ford played golf every day that he was in town and tennis at least twice in the cool morning hours.

The President seems to prefer the relaxed atmosphere here and meeting with old friends in the town — friends that knew him as Jerry Ford from Grand Rapids, Mich.

Ford also vacations at Palm Springs, Calif., and takes frequent trips to the Maryland mountains for stays at Camp David.

But, Vail lures the President for extended stays.

Presidential vacationing is not new for Colorado, but Ford is the first president to set up his Western White House in the state.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower came to Colorado on fishing trips, and he was hospitalized for several months at Fitzsimons Army Medical Center in Aurora after suffering a heart attack while in the state.

The Ford family borrows a chalet-type home here for the presidential visits.

The Ford condominium overlooks the main village area of Vail, while the home the Fords borrow from Richard Bass is in a more secluded area. Bass is a Dallas businessman.

On each trip, the White House has explained that the Fords swap homes with the Bases and pay Bass the difference in rental of his larger home and the Fords' smaller condominium.

People in the news

BOSTON (AP) — Kitty Dukakis, Massachusetts' first lady, says she felt "betrayed" when I read that President Ford felt it necessary to articulate his wife's remarks on sex.

Ford had said his wife, Betty, was misunderstood in recent comments about the Fords' personal life.

Mrs. Dukakis, wife of Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, told a Women's Equality Day breakfast, "I feel Mrs. Ford articulated what many of us have found refreshing."

"For a change, a woman in a public position articulated what many of us think."

"I sense that in the next year and a half, many of us will have spokesmen trying to speak for us," she said. "We have to respond clearly so others do not speak for us."

SARATOGA SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — The Beatles' song "Something" may be the greatest love song written in the last half-century, says Frank Sinatra.

Sinatra performed here before 7,400 fans Monday night. He introduced his own version of the song by saying, "George Harrison of the Beatles wrote probably the greatest love song of the last 50 years in 'Something.'"

The 60-year-old star had little praise for the song that people have come to associate with him. Sinatra sang "My Way" only after numerous requests from the audience.

AUSTIN, Tex. (AP) — Lady Bird Johnson says an original exhibit of 33 presidential manuscripts opening today at the Lyndon B. Johnson Library "is an example of what Lyndon hoped the library would do."

Mrs. Johnson previewed the exhibit, "The Presidents on the Presidency," on Tuesday. It includes manuscripts from every president except Chester A. Arthur and James Buchanan.

The exhibit is the first attempt "to pull something together from every president about the presidency," said the library's director, Harry Middleton.

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — "Private at this point." That's the way Kristi Vail, 21, says she wants to keep her relationship with Jack Ford, the President's son.

Miss Vail has been traveling with the Fords, and recently spent four days with the First Family at Vail, Colo.

She said she will spend this week with her parents before returning to Utah State University for her senior year.

Jack Ford graduated from Utah State last spring. The two met at school two years ago but did not start dating until this year.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE ERNST

The Ernsts repeat vows

By KAREN HEY

When George and Marie Ernst got married in 1927, it was before a justice of the peace. Tuesday, the couple celebrated their 48th anniversary with a wedding and reception in the Lee County Nursing Home, where they reside. But it was a special anniversary for them, because the bride was able to walk down the aisle to her groom, like she did 48 years ago.

Mrs. Ernst suffered a stroke about a year and a half ago. She came to the Lee County Nursing Home confined to a wheel chair and 100 pounds overweight. Her husband joined her a few months later and they have shared a room there ever since.

It was Mrs. Ernst's own goal to walk again on her anniversary. Her therapist, Katherine Lusz, said, "When she first came here, she was so heavy we had to move her with a hoist. She has a tremendous amount of motivation and she was determined to lose weight and learn to walk again."

Since dieting and the purchase of leg braces, Mrs. Ernst achieved her goal. Her therapist said she didn't know how the idea to pronounce them man and wife again came about. "It just grew because it was her dream," she said.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernst's son, Allen, escorted his mother down the aisle and gave her away in marriage. Mrs. Allen Ernst served her mother-in-law as matron of honor.

The Rev. Willis Dixon, pastor of the Open Bible Church, conducted the ceremony and Katherine Lusz sang.

Therapists Wynell Swinton and Ann Larson, Harmon, were attendants along with Doris Smiley, Sublette, and Ruth Ann Borden, Dixon, aides at the nursing home.

Groomsmen were Bob Roiland, the present administrator at Lee County Nursing Home, and former administrator Lloyd Boehle.

A reception followed the ceremony, complete with a three-tiered wedding cake, music and dancing, and presents.

Mrs. Ernst said that for their 49th anniversary she'll be dancing!

Schinzer-Delhotal wed

WEST BROOKLYN—Miss Barbara Jean Schinzer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gene Schinzer, West Brooklyn, and Charles Delhotal, son of Mr. and Mrs. Delmar Delhotal, were married recently at St. John's Lutheran Church, Ashton.

The Rev. Herman Schmitt conducted the nuptial service. Mrs. Mary Allen, vocalist, was accompanied by Mrs. Rosella Warner at the organ.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore an off-white cotton gown with a lace bodice. Panels of lace adorned the front, back and long sleeves. Her lace veil was held by a crown of beads and seed pearls. The bride carried two red roses and baby's breath tied with lace and ribbon.

Serving her sister as maid of honor was Sandra Schinzer. She was attired in a blue polyester gown with long ruffled sleeves. She wore a matching light blue picture hat and carried a nosegay of daisies.

Bridesmaids were Lori Delhotal, sister of the groom; Christ Studebaker, West Brooklyn, and Denise Moore, Mendota. Their gowns were identical to the maid of honor's.

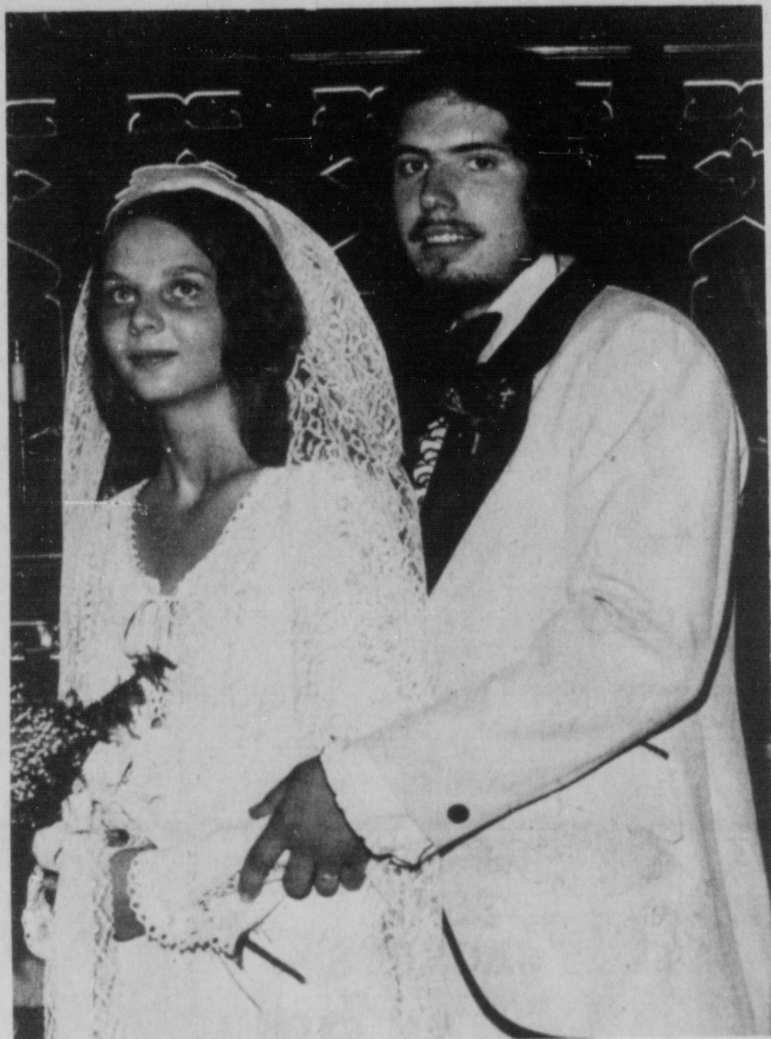

Best man was Dick Delhotal, brother of the groom. Bill Knowlton, Mendota; Tim Kromm, West Brooklyn, and Richard Studebaker, Lee Center, were groomsmen. Seating the guests were Tom Larr, Mendota, and Mike Schinzer, Ashton.

Participating as ceremonial flower girl was the bride's sister, Miss Stacy Jo Schinzer, who wore a dress that matched the gowns worn by the other attendants. Christopher Larr was the ringbearer.

The Saddle Club in Amboy was the setting for the reception that followed the ceremony. Mrs. Bill Kemp, Hennepin, and Mrs. Ronald Jones, West Brooklyn, served the cake while Brenda Jones and Susan Schinzer, West Brooklyn, poured coffee and punch. Lisa Glaser registered guests. Assisting with the gifts were Paula and Kathy Buschbacher, Aurora.

Since their wedding, the new Mr. and Mrs. Delhotal have been residing in Mendota. The newlyweds are planning a Florida wedding trip this month.

They are both graduates of Mendota High School and Mr. Delhotal is presently employed at Allied Mills, Mendota.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLES DELHOTAL

..... for and about women

16-year-old girl on self-destructive path

Dear Ann Landers: We are having terrible problems with our 16-year-old daughter. She respects your judgment and might listen to you. Here's the situation:

Within the last six months we received several phone calls. Here are some examples.

From the school principal: "Please come and get your daughter. She has been drinking and I have her here in my office."

From the mother of a boy in her class: "I found some filthy notes to my son written by your daughter. It is obvious that they have been having sexual relations. I thought you ought to know so you can speak to her."

From a department store manager: "Your daughter has been picked up for shoplifting. Please come down and let's have a talk. I don't want to call the police."

Each time we did a great deal of talking and there were promises to "do better." We feel the girl should have counseling but she is against the idea. She says nobody can tell her anything she doesn't already know.

I just can't see sitting around waiting for another phone call. It would probably be the police. Please advise us.—Mom

Dear Mom: You say your daughter might listen to me. I hope so. The following remarks are for her.

Dear Friend: Each of the three incidents cited by your mother are symptoms of deeper problems. There are specific reasons for the behavior that resulted in those phone calls.

Although you are against counseling on grounds that nobody can tell you anything you don't already know, please trust me when I say you need to TALK to somebody—not just listen.

I urge you at least to give counseling a try. You're on a collision course of self-destruction and only you can save yourself.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 11 years old and I read your column all the time. I notice sometimes you print letters from people who aren't asking for advice—they just want to tell you how they feel about something. So here is another one of those letters. Like I said, it's not really a problem but I hate it.

When you watch TV, all of a sudden you see a commercial that says if you put a certain kind of baby powder on a baby's behind he will love you. Then, a few minutes later another commercial says if you add a certain something to the gravy your husband will love you. The worst one is that commercial for chicken soup: "If you buy brand X your children will love you."

Why doesn't somebody tell the fools who write those things that there's more to love than talcum powder, gravy and chicken soup? Sign me—Had My Say

Dear Had: I guess a great many TV commercials are geared to the mentality of eight-year-olds because you, at 11, aren't going for it.

Thanks for writing. I hope somebody on Madison Avenue takes the hint.

Miss Bonnell bride-elect of Louis Bontz

Miss Barbara Bonnell, daughter of Mrs. Ann Bonnell, Sublette, and the late Marvin Bonnell, is engaged to Louis Bontz, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Bontz, Dixon.

Her fiancé is also a graduate of Amboy High School and is employed by his father at the Victory Cafe, Dixon.

The couple plans an Oct. 18 wedding at St. Patrick's Church, Amboy.

MISS BARBARA BONNELL

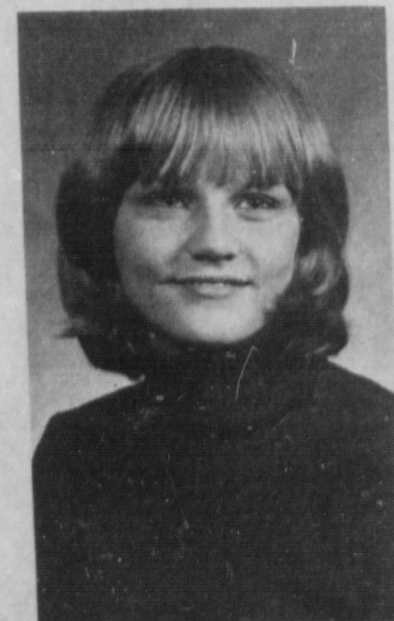

Miss Swinton bride-elect of Scott Wakeley

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Swinton, Dixon, wish to announce the engagement of their daughter, Cynthia, to Scott E. Wakeley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Wakeley, Dixon.

Miss Swinton is a 1974 graduate of Dixon High School and is presently employed at Hardees Restaurant.

Her fiancé is a '75 graduate of Dixon High School and is employed at the McKinnon Standard station.

No definite wedding date has been set.

MISS CYNTHIA SWINTON

Crawford excels at dummy play

By Oswald & James Jacoby

We aren't going to get into a discussion about the merit or lack of merit in West's opening lead. Suffice to say that it gave former internationalist John Crawford, who has played little bridge in the last 10 years, a chance to show that his dummy play is still exceptional.

He started by playing a low diamond from dummy. He wanted to save the king-jack-10 for the future. Then at trick two he led his deuce of clubs. This play was made with a twofold reason. First of all he wanted to maintain as much communication as possible. Secondly, he expected to lose two club tricks in any event and wanted to avoid the loss of three in case there was a singleton ace in the West hand.

Sure enough, there was. West had to use his ace on Johnny's deuce. West shifted to a spade, but there was nothing more that the defense could do. Johnny took his ace and played clubs. East won and led back a spade to his partner's queen. Another spade put Johnny back in his hand. Just for frosting on the cake Johnny cashed his last clubs and took a heart finesse for an overtrick. 28 (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

OVER 40!

Regular exercise is essential to keep women over 40 trimmer and more supple. Bike riding, walking and swimming are fun and make such exercising painless.

FRAGRANCE TIME
Fragrance is affected by changing weather and the season's activities. Select different fragrances to wear for summer and winter, for example, rather than clinging to one scent.

Playing together helps

Set aside the problems of work, inflation, shortages, and recession for the joys of childhood play that can reach across generations, suggests Beatrice H. Bagby, University of Illinois Extension family life specialist.

We often lack time for our children except for the daily routine of coping with them and their problems. Jobs, numerous activities and TV are but a few of the things which rob us of valuable opportunities for enjoying them.

But children love playing with their parents, Mrs. Bagby notes. This doesn't mean parents should spend most of their time playing with their children. Such total involvement would hinder a child's learning to play independently. It does mean occasionally getting involved for the pleasure of it and for the benefits for both parent and child.

This play can build, increase or deepen the parent-child relationship, Mrs. Bagby continues. It can help the child discover that his parents like him and his world. It can support his self-esteem and teach him the art of interacting with others. It can build memories that can sustain both parent and child through serious difficulties.

Whatever the season, there are specific outdoor play activities for parent and child—catch, kite flying, snowman building, jumping rope, hide and seek, dogwalking, etc. Along with the physical benefits of outdoor play and exercise for all, there is the excitement of doing things together.

Marijuana study is criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federally-supported study at Southern Illinois University at Carbondale to measure the effects of marijuana smoking on the sexual arousal of male college students watching pornographic movies has been criticized by Sen. William F. Proxmire.

The Wisconsin Democrat cited the $121,000 project Wednesday as an example of waste by the National Institute of Drug Abuse.

Results of the study apparently are not in, he said.

In a statement, Proxmire also criticized four other taxpayer-financed studies authorized by NIDA.

Robert L. DuPont, director of the NIDA, said the five projects mentioned by Proxmire represent less than 1 per cent of the agency's research efforts.

"Any study judged by its title and taken out of context might readily create the concern the senator has expressed," said DuPont. He added that when considered as part of the agency's total research, each project "makes an important contribution to our better understanding of drug abuse and how to prevent it."

DuPont said four of the five projects respond to a congressional directive to conduct extensive marijuana research and report annually to Congress.

State Rep. Borchers acquitted of fraud, conspiracy charges

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Rep. Webber Borchers, R-Decatur, has been acquitted of federal mail fraud and conspiracy charges.

A U.S. District Court jury deliberated less than 3½ hours Tuesday and found Borchers innocent of misusing his legislative expense allowance.

"It was a just verdict. It was right," Borchers said.

The 69-year-old lawmaker ran over to shake hands with jury members after the verdict was read.

The government had accused Borchers of falsifying state vouchers to collect money for secretarial services never performed.

During the trial, Borchers conceded doing this, but said he had used the money to pay an undercover investigator to infiltrate radical student groups in 1969 and 1970.

Borchers, now serving a fourth term in the House, said investigations of this type were his duty.

"If you believe in your country, you defend it," he said.

The prosecutor, U.S. Atty. Donald Mackay, said he could not understand the jury's reasoning.

Mackay had contended during the trial that whatever Borchers' intent, the legislator had violated state law regulating use of expense allowances.

A secretary, Jeanette Weber of Des Plaines, testified that she signed vouchers indicating she had worked for Borchers.

Later, she said, she endorsed the checks she received over to her boss, former Rep. Christian Homeier, R-Springfield, who cashed the checks and gave the money to Borchers. Homeier pleaded guilty earlier this month to using the same method to bilk the state of about $6,000.

Borchers said Homeier had suggested this scheme as a way of paying the investigator without going through the normal voucher process. Borchers said this was necessary because the investigator, who would not reveal his name, refused to sign the vouchers as required by law.

"When something's on fire, you don't ask where the water came from," Borchers commented.

The Decatur legislator still faces possible prosecution in Circuit Court in Sangamon County in connection with the incident.

BICENTENNIAL FACTS

The peculiar costume of the colonial backwoodsman fighting in the Revolution attracted even more attention than their marksmanship. Its pattern was borrowed from the Indians, consisting of a hunting shirt of linsey-woolsey. The shirt had a double cape and was fringed along the edges and seams and upon its breast was the motto "Liberty or Death." Around the waist it was secured by a belt in which were thrust a tomahawk and skinning knife. Some men wore buckskin breeches, others preferred buckskin leggings and an Indian breechclout. Officers were distinguished by the crimson sashes worn over their shoulders.

TV summer replacements don't fare well

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — The summer is almost over and so are most of the nine miniseries the networks offered in lieu of those (obscenity deleted) reruns. So how did the fresh wares do in the ratings?

Not so well, judging from our study of nine weeks of summer head counts by the A.C. Nielsen ratings people.

Their audience estimates, from the week ending June 29 to last week, show that only two summer series — ABC's "Jim Stafford Show" and "Almost Anything Goes" — have exhibited consistent drawing power.

The jury is still out for Dick Cavett's summer on CBS. His Saturday night variety show has two more ratings periods to go. But his first two shows did moderately well, averaging a 29 per cent share of audience.

For network and advertising brass, a major indication of a show's success is whether it reaches or exceeds a 30 per cent share of the estimated-by-Nielsen audience in its time period at night.

No way you could say this goal was reached by "Keep on Truckin'," a four-week ABC comedy-variety series featuring relatively unknown performers. It was a ratings cellar-dweller from the start.

Another low-ranker was ABC's "Texas Wheelers," a situation comedy ABC axed in mid-season, but brought back — with one repeat and three never-aired-before episodes — for another try in the summer-time.

CBS' "Joey and Dad" variety show, starring singer Joey Heatherton and her father, Ray, got off to a rousing start when it premiered July 6 and pulled in an estimated 35 per cent of the viewing audience.

Alas, it slipped to 26 per cent of the audience the next week and never went higher than that in its last two shows.

Another CBS music-variety show, "Manhattan Transfer," a musical reprise of the swing era, had much sophistication but few tuners-in. It copped 23 per cent of the estimated audience on opening night, and, with one ratings period left, has yet to exceed that mark.

For Gladys Knight and the Pips and Broadway singer-dancer Ben Vereen, this summer wasn't good at all, even if their four-week starring stints on NBC gave them additional national exposure.

The Pips' series premiered on July 10 and, by Nielsen estimates, pulled in 26 per cent of the audience. It never topped that in the three succeeding weeks.

Vereen's opening show Aug. 7 drew 20 per cent of the estimated audience, 21 per cent a week later and plunged to 15 per cent on the third go. Not much improvement is expected in his last ratings period.

Jim Stafford's six-week music-variety show on ABC — it has two ratings periods to go — started off with 31 per cent of the national audience on July 30 and has averaged nearly 30 per cent per show so far.

Mormon missionary life tough

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — More than 150 teen-age youths, wearing closely cropped hair and dark suits, pour out of a renovated downtown school building, accepting a two-year challenge that all but a few will meet.

They are part of the weekly output of self-financed missionaries to 80 countries from the 3.4-million-member Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints (Mormons).

If they follow the rules, they will for two years ignore sex, dress conservatively at all times, limit reading to church-authorized books, watch movies and television only with special permission, give up swimming and all dangerous sports, never be alone with a girl and never be separated from an assigned missionary companion.

Once in the mission field, they will study or proselyte, usually door-to-door, 13 hours a day, six days a week.

They'll tell people that God appeared to American prophet Joseph Smith in New York State in the early 1800s and restored to him Christ's only true church, which Mormons believe was taken from the earth when the Savior died.

More than 19,000 preachers — including some young women and older married couples — last year baptized nearly 70,000 converts to one of the world's fastest-growing Christian religions.

Some missionaries will quit before two years. Others fall away from the church later. Church officials say less than 2 per cent leave in mid-mission and fewer than 10 per cent eventually lose faith in Mormonism.

Some returned missionaries say they believe both figures are higher.

The only formal religious training for most of the boy preachers is five days, generally in the Missionary Home, across the street from the church's $33-million, 28-story administration building.

Most have been regular churchgoers and many have taken daily Mormon seminary classes in high school. Some will preach in languages they will learn in an intensive eight-week language school.

"I feel like I'm going to have fun and work at it. I'm going to put my nose to the grindstone," said Mel Wardell, 19, Lovell, Wyo., who begins his mission in Rochester, N.Y., this month.

In a paper written for a sociology class, a former missionary looked upon the experience as "brainwashing" and said of the training period, "I was indoctrinated to preach the Gospel and avoid other conversations such as politics, school and Utah history."

More than 20,000 missionaries are now in the field. Church officials say they want to go to every country in the world, including Arab and Communist nations and India, where they are now banned.

Church officials say the dress and conduct restrictions placed on missionaries are partly to keep the missionary's mind "single to the Gospel" and partly to protect the image of the church.

John Singleton Copley, perhaps the greatest American painter of the 18th century, portrayed many eminent colonists, among them Paul Revere. Copley married the daughter of Boston's successful tea dealer, Richard Clarke, and unfortunately, it was Clarke's tea that the Sons of Liberty dumped into Boston Harbor. Copley tried unsuccessfully to mediate the dispute between the Patriots and his Tory father-in-law but he was less concerned with politics than with achieving his artistic reputation. Copley sailed in 1774 for England to study and paint, but ironically, is remembered most for his paintings executed in the colonies. The World Almanac notes.

Lettuce war waged by rival unions

SALINAS, Calif. (AP) — A behind-the-scenes union war is raging in this rich, flat valley over who will represent some 20,000 farm workers who toil in the area known as the Salad Bowl of the Nation.

The battles are being fought by the Teamsters Union and Cesar Chavez' United Farm Workers for union control of the 85-mile-long Salinas Valley, which produces about 70 per cent of the nation's head lettuce crop.

Both unions want to represent the 20,000 workers who harvest the $114-million lettuce crop in this valley 100 miles south of San Francisco.

Teamsters represent about 13,000 farm workers on 70 valley ranches. The UFW, which has backed lettuce boycotts since the early 1970s to strengthen its position, holds one contract covering 1,500 workers.

For Chavez' union, which has lost strength in recent years, the struggle over contracts here and in the San Joaquin Valley grapefields to the east is especially crucial. For the Teamsters, it is a major test of whether they can maintain the upper hand.

Starting Aug. 28, a new California law will allow farm workers to vote in secret ballot elections to pick which union, if any, they want to represent them. In the past growers have decided which unions could solicit members in their fields.

Both unions will be working long hours to line up ballot box support and the AFL-CIO said recently that it would mount a massive, multiunion effort to help the UFW.

Growers in the valley, where Teamsters have had contracts covering agricultural truck drivers since the early 1950s, are cautious about making predictions on how the farmworker elections will turn out.

The UFW says it will win all the elections. The Teamsters' Jim Hansen says: "I think there will be some that we may lose, but we will win the bulk of them."

In August 1970 the UFW went on strike in the Salinas Valley, sparking scattered violence — fistfights, rock throwing and burnings of farm labor buses.

A court injunction ended the strike, but the growers remember those days clearly.

KEEP program into fourth year at Kishwaukee

MALTA— "KEEP educated, KEEP employed," is the motto of a continuing pilot project in its fourth year at Kishwaukee College. KEEP stands for Kishwaukee Education Employment Program.

KEEP is a 30-week program aimed at the upgrading of employment and job skills, clarifying values and establishing a personal career plan and the completion of the Credit General Education Development (CGED) program so the participants may obtain a high school diploma. KEEP is for high school dropouts.

Several of the students from last year's class have enrolled in transfer or career education classes at Kishwaukee College this fall.

KEEP receives 50 per cent funding from the federal government. The Tuesday night classes will start Sept. 30 on campus. The students will meet from 6-9:15 p.m. Students are now being interviewed for the program, which is limited to 30 students.

The program is open to all persons over the age of 17 in the Kishwaukee College district who have been out of school for more than a year.

Innovations in the program include evening classes for the CGED, the assisting of the student in finding employment and a training program developed by the Kishwaukee faculty in co-operation with the employers.

The keystones of the program will be the individualized counseling and individualized programs for each student.

The innovative program has been drawn up by horticulture instructor Larry Marty and financial aids counselor Dave Louis. They will be assisted by Gary Ellis, an agriculture instructor and counselor Dianne Stormer.

According to Louis and Marty, the program will attempt to teach the student and provide more specific help to him rather than just securing the high school diploma as the present GED program does. As special needs of the student are identified, other instructors will be brought into the program to assist.

Persons interested in further information on the program should contact Dave Louis or Larry Marty at Kishwaukee College, Malta, Ill. 60150, telephone. 825-2086.

The product of Goodwill is rehabilitated people.

Foster home discussed

ROCHELLE — An informal meeting of the Rochelle City Council and the ad hoc committee from the Ogle County Board was held Wednesday night to discuss placing the county foster home in Rochelle.

The Ogle County board recently decided to use a one-time convent belonging to St. Patrick's Catholic Church, as a home to place approximately 10 children and their foster parents.

Rochelle Board members voted down the request for rezoning the residential building at a recent council meeting. The 3-2 vote against the needed rezoning request was defeated with Commissioners Clarence Rasmussen, M. Page Weeks and L. R. Dickinson voting no on the proposal. The three councilmen felt their first obligation was to the community and voted no after 15 petitioners in the area of the proposed foster home asked the rezoning request be denied.

Four points were discussed between the ad hoc committee, council and Rochelle residents for the possible approval of the foster home. Some members agreed if the county would promise: A maximum of 10 children in the home, original zoning if the use of the home was discontinued, no juvenile delinquents would be placed in the home and a liaison representative for the county would be available to talk to area residents if a problem would arise; the council might approve the proposal.

David Guest, former city attorney for Rochelle, said these four requests could probably be written into the rezoning ordinance.

Circuit Judge F. Lawrence Lenz did not feel the project should be pushed because hostile neighbors could create a problem for children living at the home.

A petition signed by 50 Rochelle residents was presented favoring the foster home in Rochelle.

No action was taken at the informal meeting but further discussion was expected at a future Rochelle Council meeting.

Trucker ticketed

An out-of-town driver was ticketed for driving an unsafely equipped truck following a mishap early this morning.

When driving eastbound on the 400 block of East River Street, Paul E. Harris, Lake Zurich, lost control of his truck. The vehicle plunged off the northside of the road through a chain link fence belonging to Commonwealth Edison Co.

Harris maneuvered his truck back on the street, but the fencing remained entangled on the truck. As Harris drove off, 13 lengths of fence were ripped off, according to Dixon Police.

Death ruled accidental

ROCHELLE— The death of Travis E. Cansler, 7, Rochelle, who was killed July 29 when struck by a car, was ruled accidental Wednesday following an inquest conducted by Robert Personette, Ogle County coroner.

The youth was killed when he apparently darted in front of a car on Ill. 38 driven by Thomas O'Neil, 46, Sterling. No tickets were issued in the incident after it was ruled an "unavoidable accident."

Wisconsin firm is low bidder on flood project

Kramp Construction Co. of Oak Creek, Wis., submitted the apparent low bid of $1,982,617 Wednesday to the Rock Island Corps of Engineers for raising a two-mile section of the Ill. 84 embankment between Albany and Cordova, approximately six feet, to protect the Meredosia levee and Drainage District from Mississippi River floods.

Raising of the highway embankment will be a joint project of the Illinois Department of Transportation (DOT), the Corps of Engineers and the Meredosia Levee and Drainage District.

The DOT will pave a new section of highway on top of the embankment and will pay for additional fill required for the highway. The Corps of Engineers will pay for the remainder of the embankment required for flood control and will administer the construction contract for the embankment. The drainage district will provide right-of-way required for the project.

Approximately 11,170 feet of existing levee and highway embankment will be raised about six feet under this contract. This will provide a new embankment approximately 19 feet high. The embankment will be raised by hydraulic dredging of sand from the Mississippi River, with the side slopes of the embankment being covered with six inches of topsoil and then seeded.

Work on the project will begin within 15 days after the successful bidder receives notice to proceed.

The highway and levee embankment is to be completed by Oct. 31, 1976 and the entire project is to be completed by April 30, 1977.

The Meredosia Levee and Drainage District is located in Rock Island and Whiteside Counties, across the Mississippi River from Camanche, Iowa. The district contains 10,413 acres of land. The district was organized in 1895 and the area was protected by levees built by local residents. The district's Mississippi River levee came very close to being overtopped during the record 1965 flood but held by efforts by drainage district residents and the Illinois DOT.

Mobile glaucoma unit to visit

Free eye (glaucoma) screening for all adult citizens of Dixon will be available when the Lions mobile glaucoma unit will be at the YMCA, 110 N. Galena Ave., Friday from 9 a.m. to noon. Dixon Noon and Evening Lions Clubs urge all adults to take advantage of this opportunity. Glaucoma, a disease of the eyes which may cause blindness, is most often found in adults, and its symptoms are seldom noticed until it has advanced to a dangerous stage. Everyone should have his eyes checked at least once a year to make certain he is free of the disease.

Politics seen in school aid

CHICAGO (AP) — William Singer's appointment to head a task force to study Chicago public school finances indicates that Gov. Daniel Walker is playing politics with the needs of school children, says Mayor Richard J. Daley.

Singer, who was defeated by Daley in his bid this year for the Democratic mayoral nomination, contended Wednesday his appointment was not intended as a "red flag" to irritate the mayor.

But at a news conference held after Walker made the announcement, Daley said, "I think it is evident the governor is failing to meet his constitutional responsibility to provide for the education of the school children of our entire state."

Asked about the former alderman's qualifications for the job, the mayor asserted, "Singer got an answer in February when he made the schools a political issue. It's a great part of the political maneuvering." "When a candidate was so overwhelmingly defeated by the people on the school issue and is then appointed to a blue ribbon committee and the governor sits in Springfield, then he's (Walker) neglecting the needs of the children of the state of Illinois."

Walker made the appointment after Joseph P. Hannon, Chicago schools superintendent-elect, invited the state to study the finances of the city's school system to determine whether there was any hidden waste.

Hannon had said Walker's reduction of $47.2 million from the city's education budget would necessitate eliminating 1,500 teaching positions.

Accepting that invitation Wednesday, Walker called plan to eliminate the jobs "unconscionable." He maintained the state's funding of Chicago schools is $48 million greater this year than last.

Sex drive is undoing of bugs

CHICAGO (AP) — The sex drive of insects may be their undoing.

Scientists attending the annual convention of the American Chemical Society reported Tuesday advances in using artificial sex attractants to control undesirable insects in orchards, forests, fields, food storage areas and homes.

These chemical sex attractants, known as pheromones, are isolated from the insect, then are recreated artificially in laboratories before they are manufactured.

Dr. Morton Beroza, who recently retired from the U.S. Department of agriculture at Beltsville, Md., told a news conference that these pheromones do not create the environmental problems caused by some insecticides.

They do not pollute the air, plants, soil or streams and are harmless to human beings, he said.

The pheromones are the female insects' courtship perfume and can be used in a number of ways.

In the East, they have been used experimentally to control gypsy moths which have devastated many thousands of acres of forest.

In that area, Beroza said, the pheromone is used to trap moths in areas where there are dense populations.

And in thinly populated areas, the pheromone is used to confuse mating males, he said. The male senses the female sex attractant which is distributed artificially and cannot find the female, so no mating occurs.

The screw worm fly was eliminated from Florida using the sex attractants, Beroza reported.

Traps impregnated with pheromones also are used to monitor populations.

A fruit grower using the sex perfume in this way can determine the best time to spray with insecticide, John B. Siddall of Zocon Corp., Palo Alto, Calif., reported.

The grower also can determine, using traps, which area of the orchard is infested, so it is not necessary to spray the entire orchard. Siddall pointed out that both determinations save money and unnecessary use of insecticides.

The pheromone for each insect has to be synthesized differently, Siddall pointed out, because it differs with each insect.

Beroza noted that sex pheromones have been developed mostly in the past five or six years and still are too expensive to use on a large scale, although the cost is expected to drop with development of the technology.

Scientists from the University of Kansas reported at the meeting that they have succeeded in identifying and synthesizing the sex pheromone of the German cockroach, the one which infests American homes, particularly slum dwellings.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I have a hiatal hernia which causes severe heartburn and gas. When I swallow certain foods I have very loud hiccoughs. Can a hernia get larger? Will it harm the hernia to eat what I please as long as I take medicine at mealtime and between meals?

DEAR READER — A hernia of a portion of the stomach through an enlarged hole in the diaphragm is a common occurrence. You can demonstrate some degree of this in as high as 50 per cent of people over 50 years of age.

The heartburn comes from leaking acid stomach contents out of the stomach into the lower esophagus (food tube) where it joins the stomach at the location where the stomach herniates through the diaphragm.

The hernia disrupts the normal closure mechanism that prevents leaking stomach contents backward. You can have a hiatal hernia and not have this problem, or you can have a faulty closure mechanism without the hernia.

A lot of the management of a hiatal hernia is directed toward neutralizing the acid in the stomach and preventing leaking of the contents backward. These measures help prevent the heartburn. There is a good reason to try to prevent heartburn, because it is a symptom of chemical irritation of the lower esophagus. The hernia may or may not get larger, but the constant irritation of the lower esophagus can cause it to contract and scar until it becomes difficult for food to pass through the damaged area into the stomach.

To prevent this disagreeable complication, it is important that you follow your doctor's directions carefully. Your living habits are just as important as your medicines, including eating small meals, not lying down after eating, not wearing any constricting garment or belt around your waist and avoiding bending over.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Do ice-cold beverages like tea or coke, or the eating of ice cubes, have any adverse effect on the heart, the heart rate, high blood pressure, emphysema or ulcers?

DEAR READER — Not usually, but I'm not convinced that cold fluids are entirely harmless. If you fill the stomach with ice water it will chill the underneath surface of the heart. The heart rests on the diaphragm over the stomach like sitting on a pillow. The chilled water will result in changes in the electrocardiogram (T wave changes).

I have seen several cases of young men (one 21 and other 24) who drank lots of cold liquids just after vigorous exercise, as during a football game, who developed chest pain thereafter and had a heart attack. I do not know whether the attack would have occurred anyway or not. But with the knowledge that cold fluids chill the heart and knowing that the arteries to the heart can go into spasm, I have always suspected that the cold caused the attack.

For this reason, I think anyone who is very hot or has been exercising should not drink cold liquids, but should drink liquids that are only lightly cool, as ordinary tap water, at least until after they have cooled down and rested from the exertion.

Literary figures abounded in American colonies

EDITOR'S NOTE — From Michael Wigglesworth, who out-sold Milton, to Noah Webster, the American colonies were rich in literary figures. Though many, alas, including Poor Richard, endeavor'd at first not so much to make a revolution as to make a bundle — or save a soul.

By DONALD SANDERS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The independence which the American colonies won in the Revolution spurred a trend toward independence in literature, until then dominated by religious writings and political tracts. Many books and pamphlets were published in the colonial era, but they had none of the impact abroad which American literature was to develop in the past century.

The first men who made major contributions were all born after the Revolution: Washington Irving in 1783, James Fenimore Cooper in 1789, William Cullen Bryant in 1794, Ralph Waldo Emerson, Nathaniel Hawthorne and Herman Melville weren't born until the early years of the 19th century.

The American colonists wrote journals and histories, sermons to teach moral lessons and pamphlets to argue political issues. Their writings imitated popular European styles.

During the 1700s, pre-occupation with religious subjects gave way to a concern with political matters. After Great Britain imposed the Stamp Act in 1765, dozens of protests arose from all parts of the colonies — some of them with literary merit.

Some of the earliest political essays started to appear in a Philadelphia newspaper in 1767 as "Letters from a Farmer in Pennsylvania." They were recognized as the work of John Dickinson, a prosperous and cultured Philadelphian, then 35.

Dickinson advocated moderation. "We never can be made an independent people, except it be by Great-Britain herself," he wrote.

His letters were printed in all colonial newspapers, collected and published separately here and in Europe. Except for Benjamin Franklin, who wrote clever prefaces for two London editions, Dickinson was for a time the colonies' most renowned writer. When war broke out, he took up arms.

As in so many aspects of colonial life, Franklin left his mark on literature. He also advocated moderation at first, later criticized British policies in a pamphlet called "Rules for Reducing a Great Empire to a Small One."

His "Poor Richard's Almanac," published yearly from 1733 to 1758, was one of his most popular publications. "I endeavor'd to make it both entertaining and useful," he wrote, "and it accordingly came to be in such demand, that I reap'd considerable profit for it vending annually near ten thousand."

The versatile Franklin wrote many political satires — advice to a young man on the choice of a mistress; a yarn about whales leaping up the falls of Niagara like so many salmon.

With Thomas Jefferson, John Adams and others, he helped draft the Declaration of Independence — a work of literature as well as a political affirmation.

Jefferson was also a writer of great distinction, but his work survives mostly in his voluminous letters.

More violently revolutionary than Franklin was Thomas Paine, whose "Common Sense" was published on Jan. 10, 1776, while George Washington was pinning down British troops occupying Boston. Washington praised its "sound doctrine and unanswerable reasoning."

Copies were sold widely throughout the colonies, and Paine later wrote a new series, at the time of Valley Forge, starting with the words, "These are the times that try men's souls." After the war, he was tried in absentia for treason in England.

The new Constitution stirred sharp debate after the war. It was defended in a brilliant series of essays called "The Federalist" written by Alexander Hamilton, James Madison and John Jay.

There were successful writers earlier. Michael Wigglesworth, a gloomy Calvinist born in 1631, wrote "Day of Doom," which is little more than doggerel about sin and salvation. Within a year it sold more copies in America and England than did Milton's "Paradise Lost" in twice the time — a copy for every 20 persons in New England.

Three generations of Mathers — Richard, Increase and Cotton — were influential theologians and teachers. Increase published some 130 titles on subjects ranging from smallpox and politics to Indians and earthquakes.

A young schoolmaster in Goshen, N.Y., Noah Webster, called for liberation of American literature from British authors, saying the national honor demanded "a system of our own, in language as well as in government."

Webster's blue-backed spelling book, in time and various editions, sold tens of millions of copies, becoming one of the best selling books ever.

WOVEN SANCTUARY is creation of Grace Ulp of Berkeley, Calif., who worked non-stop for 15 days to finish her macramé wonder. Predicts Americans will be eating less this year

WASHINGTON (AP) — Americans will be eating less food this year than they have in eight years, the Agriculture Department now predicts.

"All of (the drop) is in livestock products," said Anthony E. Gallo, one of the economists who puts out the quarterly national food situation report for the department's Economic Research Service.

"And virtually all of that is in pork and in poultry," he added.

The agency had been projecting a 1 per cent decline in consumption for 1975 up until Tuesday, when the summary for the Sept. 4 situation report was written.

It has now raised that to 1.5 per cent below last year's level. In both 1973 and 1974 retail food prices over the course or the year rose 14.5 per cent above the previous year's average.

This year, USDA foresees an over-all increase of 9 per cent over 1974 — with most of it already having occurred in May, June and July with an explosion in meat prices that continues for pork.

In 1973, a springtime consumers meat boycott that preceded food price controls and sharp locations in the markets sent the per capita food consumption number down from the 103.8 peak of 1972 to 102.1. The chart uses a base of 100, representing the amount of food consumed per person in 1967.

During the April-June quarter this year, spending by consumers in restaurants and food vending machines rose 4 per cent, or $1.5 billion over the first quarter, the board said, while total expenditures for food at home rose only 1.4 per cent.

Even under the earlier decline estimates, Economic Research Service had foreseen the smallest amount of pork consumption in 40 years. WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department says that statements by the Soviet Union do not support speculation that that country's cotton crop has been adversely affected by drought or water shortages.

The Worry Clinic

By DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE E-652: Terry Rosenberg interviewed me when I was in Spartanburg, S.C., for a dental convention.

She is one of the most attractive newspaper women you could ever meet, and is unusually perceptive.

Though she looks about the age of a senior college coed, she is very thorough.

"Dr. Crane," I was asked by Dr. Dean McKinney, my dentist host, "did she employ shorthand to take down your answers to her questions?"

"No, she used longhand," I replied.

"Didn't that slow down the interview?" he continued.

But I found that she would jot down the essential points she wished to include in her newspaper story, as she covered everything we discussed and quoted me quite accurately.

"Dr. Crane," came Dr. McKinney's next query, "I supposed newspaper reporters always took down their interviews in shorthand."

And that seems a very logical thing to do, I'll admit.

But I told Dr. McKinney that in hundreds of my interviews with male and female reporters, coast to coast, I doubt if more than five or six ever used shorthand!

Instead, they usually scribbled with a ball point pen or lead pencil and hit the high spots, which they later expanded in their printed stories.

Terry thus asked me what I thought anent the Equal Rights Amendment (ERA) and I explained that I felt it would be like Pandora's Box, causing more trouble and legal consternation than anybody now dreams of.

Alas, Congress often pays too much attention to the vociferous minority and then quickly passes unwise legislation, chiefly to win votes at the next election.

Then a few years later, Congress must pass new laws to rescind some of these stupid laws already in vogue.

You thus recall the rule about compulsory auto seat belts that had to be fastened in order to get your motor started?

Then it was reversed!

And the bureaucratic furor re exhaust fumes led to expensive gadgets to recycle the gas vapor, all of which zoomed auto costs much higher, and reduced our mileage per gallon by almost 50 per cent.

The resulting fuel crisis then was largely produced by these unwise laws that Congress glibly passes without adequate investigation.

Imagine the plethora of foolish bills among the 6,000 now before Congress!

When the vicious PSRO law was passed in 1972, most of the Congressmen didn't even know what those letters PSRO stood for, nor had they even read the bill!

Yet it was tacked upon another bill to raise Social Security checks for Senior Citizens, being what is called a non-germane "rider."

Congressmen were coming up for election soon thereafter, so they felt it smart to "buy" the 15,000,000 votes of older citizens via offering them an 11 per cent increase in Social Security checks.

But they were not friendly to the PSRO bill that makes your private medical records public property and in many other ways reduces the quality of medical care.

Yet, to buy votes, Congress passed a bill that was a non-germane monstrosity!

And that's par for the course on Capitol Hill!

If Congress would take a two-year vacation, private business could soon zoom our economy and reduce inflation, as well as unemployment!

(Always write to Dr. Crane in care of Dixon Evening Telegraph, enclosing a long stamped, addressed envelope and 25 cents to cover typing and printing costs, when you send for one of his booklets.)

White Sox and Indians trade blank performances

CLEVELAND (AP) — Stocky Fritz Peterson, holding court in front of his locker, did his best to explain how you can be in a pitching slump and still win six straight games.

The left-hander threw a four-hit, 5-0 shutout Wednesday night against the Chicago White Sox, salvaging a split for the Cleveland Indians in the American League baseball double-header.

The White Sox won the first game 2-0 behind the five-hit pitching of Claude Osteen and Rich Gossage. Cleveland's Jim Bibby took the heart-breaking loss in that one, giving up only three hits.

Two of them, however, were home runs by Jorge Orta and Bill Melton.

Peterson, who has won six in a row and now has a 10-7 record, stifled a smile and explained, "I was really in a pitching slump."

"In my last two games, I was just kinda throwing and hoping," he added.

Peterson said pitching coach Harvey Had-dix and bullpen catcher Jeff Torborg helped him get straightened out.

"They noticed I was pulling back too far in my motion and bringing my leg back too much. Jeff said to stay more upright and get into a tuck position," he said.

"But all the runs helped too," he noted, referring to three runs in the Indians' first and two more in the fourth. The only run he needed was supplied by Cleveland leadoff batter John Lowenstein, who socked his ninth homer of the season in the first.

"You don't usually get this many wins in a row, even if you're pitching great. I pitched four good games in a row after coming off the disabled list July 17, then I pitched two bad ones and won 'em anyway. I've just been lucky."

"Look at Bibby," Peterson added. "He threw two bad pitches in that first game and got beat 2-0."

The curly haired Cleveland hurler came up with his first shutout since beating the White Sox 2-0 in July 1973, while still with the New York Yankees.

"I was actually trying for a shutout going into this game, trying to get some self respect back after those last two games. And I'm not really a shutout pitcher. I usually don't have the stuff for it," he said.

Chicago Manager Chuck Tanner said, "That was a tough game for Bibby to lose, but I was happy with Osteen and Gossage. Then they (the Indians) came back and got us."

"I'll tell you one thing about baseball. There are no easy series or easy games like there used to be . . . at least there aren't in the American League," Tanner added.

Griffey had a better day

CHICAGO (AP) — Ken Griffey says he had one of his better days in the Cincinnati Reds' 6-5 victory over the Chicago Cubs, but it wasn't his four base hits and two runs batted in that pleased him most.

Rather, says the 24-year-old outfielder, it was a twirling, leaping first-inning catch near the right field vines in Wrigley Field. Griffey caught a line drive off the bat of Rick Monday with a man on base, a hit he thought was headed for a home run.

"That could've been the turning point of the ball game right then," said Griffey. "It's got to please me more. You don't catch 'em like that every day."

Griffey snared Monday's drive after Red starter Pat Darcy walked Cub leadoff hitter Don Kessinger and it preceded a single by the Cubs' league-leading batsman, Bill Madlock.

It could have helped stake the Cubs to an early lead, an element essential in beating the Reds, according to Cub skipper Jim Marshall.

Instead, the Cubs fell behind early and although they took the lead for a time, they couldn't keep pace with the Reds, who swept their three-game series with the Cubs and 11 of their 12 games season games against them.

Griffey, who went 4-for-6 and drove in what proved to be the decisive run, and Pedro Borbon, who picked up his eighth win in relief against four losses, were Cincinnati's keys to Wednesday's win.

Borbon, who relieved a wild Pe Darcy after the Cubs took a 4-3 lead in the third, kept a live fastball down low in yielding one run that scored on an in-field out and four hits during a five-inning stint.

Griffey led a Red attack that consisted of 15 singles, 13 of them coming off starter Bill Bonham. Bonham also walked five during six innings of work and saw his record sink below .500 to 11-12.

Griffey drove in what proved to be the decisive run in the fifth with a line shot to right that scored Bill Plummer.

The Reds had gone ahead 5-4 in the fourth on a sacrifice fly by Tony Perez which scored Pete Rose and after Griffey, who had singled and stolen one of the Reds three bases, came home on George Foster's single.

The Cubs, who had fallen behind 3-0, took the lead in the third on pinch batter Pete La-Cock's two-run double, which drove home Jerry Morales and Andy Thornton. Morales had walked and Thornton had singled.

The Reds scored in the first with Perez driving Rose home with a single to center. Bonham had walked Rose and a wild pitch sent him to second. Cincinnati added two more in the second when Griffey singled home Plummer and Joe Morgan singled home Rose.

The Cubs were the beneficiaries of six walks during Darcy's three-inning appearance but couldn't ice the opportunities. Darcy walked four batters in the second but a double play kept damage down as the Monday's two-run producing single was the only Cub hit.

After the third, Borbon shut the door and ace relievers Will McEneaney and Rawley Eatwick shared the ninth inning, putting the Cubs down in order with Eastwick getting his 17th save.

"You can't make mistakes against the Reds and as far as I'm concerned the mistakes we made were Bonham's five walks," said Marshall. "You've got to jump on top of these guys and spotting them three runs didn't help us much."

The Reds' 15 hits were in keeping with their vigorous attack of Cub pitching all year long. They pounded Cub hurlers at a 380 clip in the two teams' dozen engagements, registering 92 base hits.

CHICAGO CUBS catcher Steve Swisher tries to get over Cincinnati Reds Darrel Chaney (12) after tagging him out during the second inning in Chicago. Reds Fred Norman tapped to Cubs' third baseman Bill Madlock, who threw home to stop Chaney from scoring. Umpire John Pryor calls the play as pitcher Rick Ruschel comes in from the mound. Bonefish grabs favorite ratings DUQUOIN, Ill. (AP) — Despite a poor showing in his last race and unenviable luck in the post position draw, Bonefish remains the consensus favorite for the 50th Hambletonian Stake.

Stanley Dancer, the bay colt's driver and part owner, calls him a "superhorse." Though his closest rivals may shy away from that assessment, they agree he's the standard bred to beat in Saturday's nationally televised trot.

At last week's Horseman's Futurity in Indianapolis, Bonefish threw a shoe in the first heat, finishing eighth, and went off stride in the second to finish fifth.

Wednesday he emerged with the ninth starting position among the two fillies and 10 other colts entered in the race, the most prestigious in the country for 3-year-olds and, with a $232,192 purse, the richest anywhere.

Said Dancer, a two-time Hambletonian winner: "I'd rather be at the rail, but it's not going to hurt him." He dismissed the Indianapolis disappointment, saying, "That's just misfortune. It could have been a lot worse than it was. He was fine this morning."

Seemingly satisfied was Jimmy "The Greek" Snyder, an extra-added Hambletonian attraction in this, the first year pari-mutuel betting has been allowed at the race since it moved to DuQuoin in 1957. The Las Vegas odds-maker made Bonefish and stablemate Surefire Hanover the 2-1 favorites. Surefire, driven by Dancer's son Ronnie, did only a shade better in the draw, turning up eighth.

Naturally, Dancer figures the second half of his entry for the top spot should Bonefish falter, but behind him he's looking for Glasgow, a brown colt driven by 1974 Hambletonian winner Bill Haughton.

"He's been tough," Dancer said. "He's been knocking at the door right along."

"I've got a good chance," Haughton said, "I have a hell of a lot better chance this year than I did last year."

His Christopher T. surprised everyone, including Haughton, when he won in 1974. "I almost didn't enter him," Haughton said.

Glasgow, who with stablemate Spearmint is rated 3-1, won the Horseman's Futurity with heats of 1:59 and 1:55 and 1:59 flat. Bonefish, however, holds a season record 1:58 1-5 and Dancer owns the world's record a 1:56 2-5 set at the 1972 Hambletonian with Super Bowl.

Spearmint drew 10th position and Glasgow fourth. Haughton said, "If he is as he was last week, he's going to be right in there."

Also right in there are Songflori, who will be driven from the third spot by Delvin Miller and with stablemate Meadow Bright, a filly starting 12th, is 4-1.

"It isn't that good a position with trailers," Miller said, referring to the three horses who will start behind him on the second row.

Miller has raced in 19 Hambletonians but won only in 1950. "I want to try to get it every 25 years," he said. But he isn't pinning all his hopes on the colt. "I think Meadow Bright can trot as much or maybe more than Songflori," he said. Songflori has a 2:00 2-5 mark this year and Meadow Bright, a 2:00 1-5.

Fashion Blaze, a 6-1 shot starting seventh under the reins of Jim Larente, seems a good dark horse in a race where dark horses have won two years in a row.

Sport Notes

Polo All-Stars

POLO—The Polo Little League All-Star team went undefeated during the tournament held, here, last weekend. Polo topped Oregon in the championship game which was hampered by a brief rain.

Bowling meeting

A bowling meeting will be held in the Sublette Community Building Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. Anyone planning to bowl in the mixed league this fall should attend this meeting. Captains of the teams are especially urged to be present or have someone there to represent your team so the schedule can be set up.

If you are unable to attend and you wish to bowl in the league, please contact Paul Henkel, president of the organization, or Doug Schimmer, secretary.

Bears look for third win

CHICAGO—The improved Chicago Bears open their nine-game home schedule against the Denver Broncos Saturday at 8 p.m. in Soldier Field looking for their third victory in four starts under new coach Jack Pardee.

Of the 57 players expected to see action for the Bears, 25 will be making their first appearances in Chicago colors at Soldier Field.

The home debut of Pardee's Bears also marks the homecoming of 1974 NFL rushing champion Otis Armstrong, who prepped at Farragut High School on the city's southside.

Living up to Pardee's creed of being a strong fourth quarter team, the Bears enter the home opener with a 2-1 record. The Broncos come in 1-2 after tipping Houston 27-21 in Denver Saturday.

The Bears rallied from a 13-0 deficit Saturday with two fourth quarter TDs against the St. Louis Cardinals at Champaign to win 14-13. The Chicagoans have outscored their three opponents 33-6 in the last 15 minutes of play.

Referring to that statistic, Pardee sees positive progress: "It's the biggest area of improvement I can see between the 1974 Bears and this year's team. Saturday we beat a good Cardinal team in the fourth quarter. All our practices are geared to be a strong fourth quarter team. It looks like it's paying off."

"There are other good signs but, considering we still haven't played our best offensive team and have not played our best football, our fourth quarter strength indicates we're on the right track."

Handicapping injuries have contributed to the progress gap between Pardee's offense and defense. Seven Bears missed the Cardinal game with injuries—six of them from the offense. Running backs Cid Edwards, Walter Payton and Ken Grandberry, receiver Wayne Wheeler, guard Noah Jackson, and free safety Garry Lyle could all return to action against the Broncos.

Return of any of the wounded coupled with the first Chicago action for the newly acquired wide receiver Ron Shanklin should boost the Bears' offensive stock. The 6-1, 190-pound Shanklin departed Pittsburgh Monday fifth on the Steelers all-time pass-catching list in just five seasons. The Bears had been looking for an experienced pass catcher with good size to complement their receiver corps.

Pardee is not expected to name a starting offensive lineup until later in the week.

MURRAY OLDERMAN PRO CHARTS BALTIMORE COLTS

COACH'S OUTLOOK:

"The Colts," claims their new head man, Ted Marchibroda, "can see the light at the end of the tunnel. What we need most is victories to give us confidence. Our weakness of last year, the offensive line, has turned into a strength. Our aim this year is to provide stabilization."

Give a pint-sized gift. Give Blood.

the good neighbor.

The American Red Cross advertising contributed for the public good

OFFENSE DEFENSE

Receiving—It's excellent, says Marchibroda, but needs experience. Roger Carr, Freddie Scott are nimble soph threats, with Glenn Doughty to help. The tight end job is niftily handled by a proven vet, Raymond Chester. Rating—good.

Running—Colts are looking for the home run of offense. Lydell Mitchell should be it, but he hasn't always been consistent. Led NFL in catches with 72. There's keen search for full-back to go with him. The holdovers haven't been impressive. Room for rookie Roosevelt Leaks. Rating—fair-to-good.

Line—Really jacked up quality by getting George Kunz, all-pro, at tackle and drafting Ken Huff, who should step into regular guard spot. Ed George, from Canada, also has chance to break into first string job. The holdovers are just so-so, which is why they got the new men. Rating—good.

Quarterback—On raw ability, you'd have to say Bert Jones is one of NFL's budding stars. He gets first shot at job, backed by bloom-off-the-rose Marty Domres. Rating—fair.

LINE—The names aren't too recognizable, but watch out for them. Colts have done good job stockpiling young huskies. Need only left tackle now. Ends are pair of zippy second-year men, John Dutton and Fred Cook. Joe Ehrmann, with all of two years' experience, is the stanchion. Rating—fair-to-good.

Linebacking—Most veteran part of team. Mike Curtis in middle is link to old title days, a guy with still enough speed, spark to rally defense. On outside, Tom MacLeod, Stan White are steady, still young pros. Could use some depth in all these areas, though. Rating—good.

Secondary—Looking for one corner man to go with Nelson Munsey. It could be well-rated rookie Mike Washington of Alabama, who looks part physical-ly. Couple of heady guys at safety in 10-year-man Rick Volk, Bruce Laird. Rating—fair-to-good.

Kicking—David Lee has been among best punters in league for decade, should sustain his average. Austria's Toni Linhart has filled in adequately for field goals. Rating—good.

SUM-UP:

If Colts were in another division, I'd pick them to be the surprise team of season. They're ready to play respectable football, but I can't see them vying for top spot.

Prediction: third in AFC East.

Packers, Patriots in first pre-season clash

GREEN BAY, Wis.—Hopeful the glare of national television and the return to home turf will have a salutary effect upon their psyche, and thus their performance, the Packers record a "first" in Milwaukee County Stadium, Saturday night.

There they will meet the New England Patriots, their opponents for the first time in a pre-season game, who also will be making their initial visit to Wisconsin.

To date, the Packers and Patriots have had a short but unhappy relationship. At least, that is, as far as the Packers are concerned. Their only previous meeting, at Schaeffer Stadium in Foxboro, Mass., Nov. 18, 1973, still lingers painfully in the Packers' collective memory.

On that occasion, they were out front 24-7 in the third quarter and apparently en route to their fourth victory of the season. Quarterback Jim Plunkett had other notions, however, spurring a dramatic Patriot turnaround, and the Packers emerged a sunned, 33-24 losers.

The Green and Gold are hardly in the mood for a repeat of that contretemps, having fallen to the Bengals in Cincinnati last Saturday night, 27-10, in suffering their first defeat after successive victories over the Buffalo Bills and Chicago Bears.

Neither, presumably, are the Patriots, 24-10, victims of the Eagles last time out, a game in which Philadelphia registered seven interceptions, four against Plunkett and three against his backup, ex-Wisconsin quarterback Neil Gaff.

All of which suggests Saturday night's contest will be a battle of redemption for both principals, now being demoted to zero in on the regular season—and another roster reduction. On the coaching lines, the Packers' Bart Starr will be paired with New England's Chuck Fairbanks, the former University of Oklahoma mentor who has restored the Patriots to respectability in two years' time.

The Pats, who were in prime contention for the AFC's Eastern Division championship last season until decimated by an injury epidemic, boast one of the NFL's most explosive offenses. In addition to Plunkett, who threw for 2,457 yards and 19 touchdowns in 1974, the Patriots also feature pocket-sized Mack Herron, who last year set a league record for total yards gained in a season; fullback Sam Cunningham, the NFL's 10th ranking rusher a year ago with 811 yards; and a pair of accomplished wide receivers, Randy Vataha and Darryl Stingley.

New England also owns one of the NFL's most prolific scorers in place-kicker John Smith, who last year as a rookie finished second to Pittsburgh's Roy Gerela in AFC scoring with 90 points, hitting on 16 of 22 field goal tries and 42 of 43 conversion attempts.

Since all NFL teams must cut their rosters to 49 by next Tuesday, both Starr and Fairbanks are expected to conduct "final exams" for a number of their athletes, although each is likely to experiment less liberally than was the case a week ago.

This may be particularly true of the Patriots, who will be striving to balance their pre-season record. They lost their opener to the New York Giants (28-14) and surprised the Minnesota Vikings (36-10) before losing to Philadelphia last week. The game will be televised nationally by NBC, starting at 8 o'clock Wisconsin time, with Jim Simpson and ex-San Francisco 49er quarterback John Brodie sharing the microphone.

yard attempt was just short. I didn't get all of it, but when I kicked it I thought it was good. It couldn't have been any straighter than it was. You have to hit those long ones hard, of course, and I guess it wasn't hard enough . . . I did on the first one."

Bill Bain, on his 11-yard kickoff return: "I would have gone a lot farther if I had any moves. Funny thing, I was kidding Coach Lord during the week—I told him he ought to put me back there on kickoffs, because I'd run them back in high school. Then when the ball was coming toward me, I started to shake. I hadn't touched a football in five years."

"Johnnie Gray (after being frisked for a touchdown pass): "Welcome to the NFL."

Note-Worthy

Steve Odom's 100-yard kickoff return against the Bengals was the longest by a Packer since Dec. 6, 1970, when Larry Krause returned the opening kickoff 100 yards for a touchdown to trigger a 20-12 victory over the Steelers at Pittsburgh.

Chester Marcol's 52-yard field goal, registered on the final play of Saturday night's first half, "unofficially" matched the Packer field goal distance record he shares with Ted Fritsch and Paul Hornung. Marcol, now the only Packer ever to kick two 52-yard field goals, turned the trick for the first time against the Colts at Baltimore, Sept. 22, 1974.

John Brockington and Mike McCoy served as the Packers' co-captains against the Bengals. Al Matthews and Dick Himes performed in that capacity for the Buffalo contest Aug. 9 and Rich McGeorge and Fred Carr for the Bears game, Aug. 16.

Ken Payne made his first reception of the pre-season in the third minute of Saturday night's game, a quick screen from John Hadl.

Ken Ellis's first quarter interception of Ken Anderson was his second theft of the season.

Rookie quarterback Carlos Brown was the Packers' leading rusher against the Bengals, getting 29 yards on a pair of scrambles.

Montefusco whiffs 14 Tough act to follow

By BRUCE LOWITT
AP Sports Writer

John Montefusco is coming up in the world. He may be taking the elevator to the penthouse pretty soon.

The San Francisco Giants' rookie right-hander had a pretty tough act to follow when he took the mound Wednesday. "Ed Halicki got his no-hitter Sunday and then Pete Falcone struck out 12 Tuesday night, so I had to do something," he grinned.

What he did was get 14 strikeouts, tops in the National League this year, and breeze to a 9-1 rout of the Expos.

"I finally did it, something better than anyone in the National League!" Montefusco crowed after finally achieving a month-long goal — getting his 11th victory of the year.

With his 14 strikeouts, Montefusco boosted his season total to 166, one shy of John D'Acquisto's year-old club record for a rookie.

Bruce Miller was particularly tough on the Expos, driving in four runs with a two-run single in the sixth and a two-run triple in the eighth. Bobby Murcer kicked in with a two-run single in the third inning.

Mets 7, Padres 0

Tom Seaver became the NL's first 19-game winner and edged within five strikeouts of a major league mark while riding homers by Dave Kingman and Rusty Staub to his victory over the Padres.

Seaver, who hurled a six-hitter for his fifth straight victory, struck out 10 batters and needs just five more to become the first major leaguer ever to fan 200 or more batters eight seasons in a row.

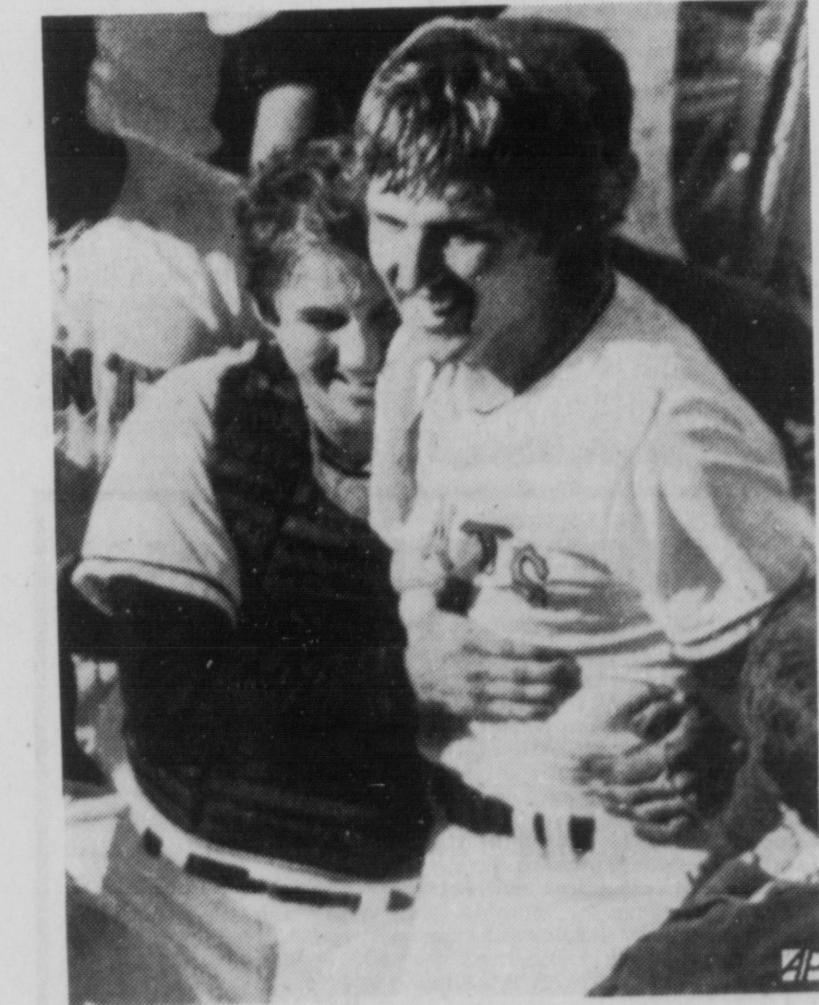

Braves 6, Pirates 2

The Braves, held hitless by John Candelaria for 6 2-3 innings, broke through for a pair of unearned runs in the seventh inning before Ralph Garr's tie-breaking single in a four-run ninth beat the Pirates.

Shortstop Craig Reynolds' wild throw on Vic Correll's leadoff grounder in the ninth — his second error of the game

LOS ANGELES — Kareem Abdul-Jabbar's only professional coach had been Larry Costello at Milwaukee until his trade June 16 to Los Angeles. And Bill Sharman, the Lakers' head coach, is just the fifth man to guide the star center in his basketball career.

His grammar school coach at St. Jude's in New York City was Farrell Hopkins. Jack Donohue was his coach at Power Memorial Academy in Manhattan from 1961-65. John Wooden coached him at UCLA from 1965-69, then Costello from 1969-75.

DAVE RADER, San Francisco Giants catcher, left, hugs Ed Halicki as they leave the field in San Francisco after Halicki threw a no-hit shutout against the New York Mets. It was the first no-hitter in the National League in two years. (AP Wirephoto)

Sounds may move to Baltimore

MEMPHIS (AP) — The American Basketball Association's Memphis franchise has taken another bounce, this time back to Baltimore, a Memphis newspaper reported today.

The Commercial Appeal said the league will announce the sale of the bankrupt Sounds at a news conference today in Baltimore.

ABA Commissioner Dave DeBusschere stopped short Monday of saying the franchise would remain in Memphis when he announced the league had withdrawn Baltimore from consideration.

"I've think they've made a deal," said Avron Fogelman, a principal in a group which sought to keep the team in Memphis. "Based on my conversation with DeBusschere Tuesday night, if we didn't hear back from them by noon Wednesday then they had made a deal with Baltimore."

Fogelman's conversation with DeBusschere came after the Memphis group announced Tuesday night it was breaking off negotiations with the league for the purchase of the team.
